The Invitation

In invitation? An invitation to celebrate? This year was like any other year: boring. There were a few good times, but what is there to celebrate about school???

Many students felt this way, and many probably still do. But this book has captured the memories of the year to show and remind us of the many different and exciting things that did happen. The invitation states: All students of Whittier Christian High School are invited to celebrate with us the nineteen hundred and eighty-four to eighty-five school year. In order to celebrate, the good things that took place must first be recalled. Disregard the petty problems, the worries, and the disappointments. Remember them as times of growing and learning. Concentrate instead upon the many things, often minute and remote from the immediate circumstances, that brought gladness and excitement.

Whether it was a particularly fun lunch time, and encouragement, the feeling of being loved and supported by friends, realizing that God was working in your life, or even going out of the way to make someone else feel better, there were plenty of special moments. Then also remember the times of laughter. The crazy times with friends, the jokes in class, and the sometimes wild weekends. Recall cheerful times past.

With the turning of every page, remember the many occasions of joy. Along with the invitation to celebrate the memories of the past year, rejoice in the little moments of gladness that occur every day. But now, come join the Guests and Chaperones in Entertainment and Games and welcome to the party of 1984-85!!

1. Doug Irwin, Kraig Johnson, and Aaron Arrendondo are a few of the less studious Study Hall students. 2. Danny Sampson cannot seem to understand his NASB Bible version while John Harris finds reading the Living Bible quite enjoyable. 3. Appearing to have everything under control, Garret Mallard gives his best G.Q. glance. 4. The beginning of another school day does not get Terryl Moulton, Brian Kipphen, Terra Stephens, and Julie Webb down. 5. Sandra Gooss and Lynette Hornbaker, in mourning, shed few tears at the death of Valley.

To Celebrate

Throughout the year all students had reasons to be happy.

Because each of us had different personalities, we had things to celebrate that were special only to us and to our friends. Although we had varied likes and interests, our common bond in the Lord was still the basis for being here together.

Our differences were not at all hard to perceive. Contrasting styles of dress could be noticed in just watching students walk by in the hallways. Some people wore neon, others lacy outfits. A few wore all black, some stayed preppy, and many just dressed like they always had. Diverse and unique habits and priorities brought people of identical thought together as friends. Who can forget the cliques of cheerleaders, band members, hard studiers, trendies, and sports players?

But something still pulled us together as one school — Christ was our bond. As Christians, we had the love and Spirit of Christ within us. He invited the world to share in our joy and celebration by giving us the gift of abundant and eternal life through Jesus Christ. Learning more about this gift and how to share it was one of the main purposes of going to Whittier Christian rather than a public high school.

Though we were all very different, Christ's gift was given to each of us and all were invited to celebrate this life with one another

1. Kathy Boggio, Maria Hammer, and Pam Stockwell prepare for a modeling career. 2. Candy Cone and Becky Tippin definitely have spirit and "problem hair." 3. Rich Wierenga and his dog Spot. 4. Michelle Cluck and Andrea Burns proudly strut school colors. 5. Matt Rudametkin just washed his hair and could not do a thing with it.

Each Moment

How many times did we students worry about something for a long time, and then discover that the very thing that was bothering us was really no great problem? Looking back we remember the good times, the times we rejoiced. Regardless of the immediate pressures, each of us had so many reasons to celebrate.

The year did hold many, many little worries. Looking right, getting good grades, winning that game, getting home before curfew, and going to the right college were just a few. However, when we recall how long we pressured ourselves to distraction trying to impress that special person, or whatever our particular problem, we see that the whole ordeal was absurd; the Lord had everything worked out beforehand and no feelings of distress could have changed His will.

Parents always told us "high school years are the best ones of your life." Somehow, with all the worrying and the 'big' decisions, we had, at times, forgotten all that the Lord had done to make our lives happy. But reflecting today, the good times were when we did not let the worries get us down and enjoyed ourselves as if carefree.

Beyond the recognition of past happiness we realize present joys. In looking back to the happiest times of the 1984-85 year, we invite all to celebrate this present moment, as well as each moment hereafter, praising the Lord for all He has done.

1. Bill McCarron, Dieter Tack, Greg Buckner and Brian Szerenyi anxiously await the outcome of the Homecoming game. 2. Robin Cook sighs in exasperation over troubles. 3. Dean Reihm does not watch Tim Gardiner as he bites either the locker or his flesh. 4. Kim Davis pushes off competition from Jennifer Lopez in order to keep Steve Crawford's eyes from wandering. 5. Reid Lehner practices his tough and confident expressions.

1. Mr. Caffrey loves to spend time just talking to and getting to know his many freshmen pupils. 2. Since Coach is often busy in his office, he fills it with things he loves. 3. After hearing from the strategy coaches in the reporter's box Coach calls important plays. 4. Coach listens to the reports from the box about how game strategy is succeeding. 5. John, Steve, Coach, Chris, Sarah, Paul, Cheryl, and Joanna were in their finery for Chris' wedding. 6. Football players relax while listening to Coach Caffrey teach them how to apply Christianity to their daily lives.

Like Coach

There are some people who live a life in which they celebrate the presents joys, regardless of the immediate troubles. This does not mean that everything about their life is perfect, but that their personality does not allow the negatives to get them down and depressed for any length of time. These people stand out in the crowd, and more often than not, are admired for this ability. Coach Tom Caffrey is this type of person, and he has served as an example for all in the past twelve years at Whittier Christian.

Each year, Coach Caffrey initiated freshmen to Whittier Christian Bible classes. Here he had a valid and potent ministry exemplifying a joy-filled life and sharing Biblical truths. Students remember him as being very giving and usually having a happy and high spirit (especially on his birthday and before big games!). His success in relating to freshmen was certainly a reason to celebrate.

A large part of Mr. Caffrey's life was devoted to coaching the football team. Following the victory in the 1983 CIF Championships, he once again led the team through a successful season. Some players would describe him as "blazingly happy" after victories. But a major part of his significant dealings with individual players took place in the Wednesday night team Bible studies. Coach enjoyed mixing two very important parts of his life; football and Jesus Christ. Stressing unity, Coach was very open with the players, letting them see the casual Coach Caffrey and a man who loved the Lord, found joy in life, and played football. Some characterized him as one who was "always laughing about football stories" but, on his serious side "stands up for what he believes."

Coach Caffrey was also very involved with his family and church. Certainly, taking care of six children and a wife, Sarah, requires a lot of time. His son, Steve, said that although they are a busy family, they do "take time to be together as a family after football games and after church." He also said that his father "gets happier the older he becomes, the longer he stays at Whittier Christian, and the better the team does." Coach also enjoyed himself in the fellowship he received at Granada Heights Friends Church. He was pitcher for the softball team during the summer and participated in the Phileo group. While there, he added to the entertainment and fun with anecdotes about past games and with his general friendly personality.

A special thanks to Coach Tom Caffrey. He has been an example to all of a man who celebrated life and loved the Lord. We celebrate him by dedicating this issue of the Trumpet to Coach Caffrey.

MISS DOBRENEN

Dedicated Director

One of the many dedicated teachers at Whit-tier Christian was Miss Dobrenen, the Junior class sponsor. She and her assistant Mrs. Friesen, were responsible for organizing and coordinating the activities of the Junior class council.

Miss Dobrenen's high school Spanish teacher showed real enthusiasm about being with students and Miss Dobrenen saw this as her motivation for getting involved. Miss Dobrenen's goal for the council was to have them develop a servant's attitude. She appreciated their enthusiasm and noted that they were learning to be more organized. When asked if she saw any special characteristics about the class of '85, she said, "They enjoy being with each other — some can't bear to be separated for one class."

BRIAN

Brian Szerenyi was the junior counterpart of the chaplaincy for this past year. He felt led to be chaplain after last year's Bible classes and chapels changed his attitude and he realized what a privilege it is to be a Christian. He hoped that the chapels gave the students a better understanding of true Christianity. He wanted to challenge the student body as a unit and as individuals with Matthew 5:15 which encourages believers to be good witnesses because he saw "A desire in many students to follow Christ more closely."

Brian enjoys swimming and listening to music. He also likes to run and was a member of the Cross-Country team. Bible was his favorite class because "I learn about God and, to top that off, I get credit for taking the class."

Lunchin' It

With off-campus privileges still two long years away, sophomores were again confronted with the question of how to fill that half hour called lunch. Using their creative ingenuity, the class of '87 did find numerous ways to solve their dilemma, satisfying their appetites at the same time.

While some sophomores spent their time socializing, others carefully chose a spot on some bench, wall, or planter in the quad, never to budge from it for the year's entirety. And many were seen every day, waiting to buy their favorite munchies from the student store. The foods most eaten didn't change much from past years, though; mom was still brown-bagging it for the majority.

When asked about lunchtime, one student profoundly replied, "Lunch is getting back to nature . . . and ham and cheese sandwiches."

Soph Sponsor

The sophomore class was blessed with a new sponsor this year; Mr. Barry Drake became their advisor, taking on the responsibilities that come with this position. His job included organizing class council meetings, helping with fund raisers, and supervising activities. One such activity was the trip to Magic Mountain in November, which seventy-five students attended. While Mr. Drake wasn't busy with his sponsorial duties, he enjoyed "coaching soccer, reading, picking on students, and watching John Wayne movies." He felt this class had "awesome spirit" (they "love to play!"), but also, they had a great willingness to work. These traits were also seen in this year's council, which was organized and communicated well with their class. Summarizing Mr. Drake's personality, one student stated, "Yeah dude, I think he's a pretty cool guy!"

Jeans on Maybrook?

This year the Freshman council and sponsor, Mr. Davis, had a very special project. It was a "prayer project" to get the students involved in giving and was promoted by the student council and Mr. Davis in his classes. The goal of the project was to change the students' attitudes towards giving. As Mr. Davis put it, "We would like every student to want to give up one pair of pants." In other words, they wanted the students to be looking for opportunities to give. He hung a pair of jeans in his classroom to illustrate this point. The first chance for the students to respond to this project occurred when weekly collections were taken before Christmas for the famine victims in Ethiopia. When asked for their opinion about this, some students were indifferent but many reflected that it helped them to have a "better attitude about the offering."

Six Years and Goin' Strong

For the sixth consecutive year, the freshman class was sponsored by Mr. Don Davis. Involved in student senate while in high school and in A.S.B. while in college, Mr. Davis has a background in student government which motivated him to become the sponsor. He also saw relationships that could be built through being the class advisor. The students that he worked closest with were the freshman class council. Together, they planned the trip to Magic Mountain, helped with Homecoming, and organized various other outings which brought class unity. Mr. Davis's responsibilities were basically to give advice and to let the council work — which they definitely did! The council showed a great interest in spiritual things, which may have been a reflection of the priorities of their advisor; he was also head of the missions and evangelism department at his church.

WCHS VS MELODYLAND

The Heralds easily defeated the Flames 30-6. This devastating upset foreshadowed the season to come, showing the team's awesome potential.

WCHS VS ORANGE LUTHERAN

Against Orange Lutheran the Heralds once again prevailed by beating the Lancers, 25-7, as Dave Murrane intercepted Lancer quarterback Tony Harnack 3 times and the Heralds defense limited the Lancers to only 28 yards on the ground.

WCHS VS ONTARIO CHRISTIAN

This game made history as it was the first time WCHS conquered Ontario on their own home ground. The defense recorded their first shutout of the season, beating the Knights 27-0, as Sampson fired a touchdown pass to Tim Wharton and one to Doug Irwin.

WCHS VS CAPISTRANO VALLEY CHRISTIAN

The Heralds continued to roll with a 28-0 victory as the WCHS defense had their second shutout in a row. Dan Sampson fired 3 more touchdown passes and Ortega rushed for 144 yards; Sampson's touchdown passes were to Irwin, Sterling, and Johnson while the defensive unit held the Eagles to 82 yards.

WCHS VS VALLEY CHRISTIAN

In the crucial game against the Crusaders the defense shined once again as WCHS sent on to defeat Valley 17-0. Johnson returned his fourth punt for a touchdown, 75 yards, and Sampson hit Murrane with a 23 yard TD pass and Marc Sanchez filling in for the injured Tim Wharton, added a 21-yard field goal to ice the victory.

WCHS VS BRETHERN

The Heralds destroyed the Warriors, 47-0 as the defense recorded their 4th shutout in a row. Sampson threw 4 touchdown passes, two to Irwin, one to Murrane, and one to Sterling; Ortega scored 3 touchdowns and rushed for a season high of 179 yards to put him on top in Orange County with 1,215 yards!

WCHS VS MARANATHA

In the last half of the regular season the Heralds recorded another shutout, their 5th in a row — a school record, and were allowing 4.8 points per game — both school records. Through 10 games WCHS went undefeated in regular season play at 10-0 as the Heralds defeated the Minutemen of Maranatha 28-0.

Victory

Before the football season began, Whittier Christian coach Tom Caffrey said, "In order for us to repeat as Inland Conference champs we have to be healthy and a little lucky. It's definitely harder to repeat the second time."

At Riverside City College Friday, Dec. 7, the Heralds successfully defended that title as Tim Wharton booted field goals of 21 and 30 yards, and Phil Sterling recovered a fumble in the end zone for a touchdown. Combined with Wharton and Sterling's efforts, the Heralds posted a 13-3 triumph to end the '84 season with a perfect 14-0 ledger. By beating a stubborn OCHS team before a crowd of 3,250, the Heralds extended their two-year win streak to 20 games.

The win marked the first time in the school's history that the Heralds had posted an undefeated season. WCHS went 10-0 in '81 only to lose to Orange Lutheran in the first round of the play-offs.

Also, Whittier Christian becomes the first Inland Conference champ to win back-to-back titles since the inception of conference play in 1977. You have to go back to Brea Olinda High to find a team winning back-to-back 1A titles.

The knights held the Heralds to a season low 194 yards offensively. Also, OCHS held Mark Ortega, who entered with 1,957 yards to 96 yards on 24 carries. Despite being held for the first time since the Valley Christian game, Ortega finished the year with 2,053 yards. Although held to their lowest offensive output of the season in total yards, WCHS still moved the ball at will against the Knights. Costly mistakes hurt their chances for a blowout. The Heralds turned the ball over four times (three fumbles and an interception).

OCHS coach Hamming said, "WCHS did a good job on the goal line stand. They stopped us. That hurt not getting any points before halftime. A field goal would definitely have helped, but the best laid plans of mice and men don't work out sometimes." While Coach Caffrey said, "I'm thrilled to death to repeat as champions. I have to say this," Caffrey added, "this is the best football team that I've ever had. And I've had some good teams but this year's team I have to say is the best one."

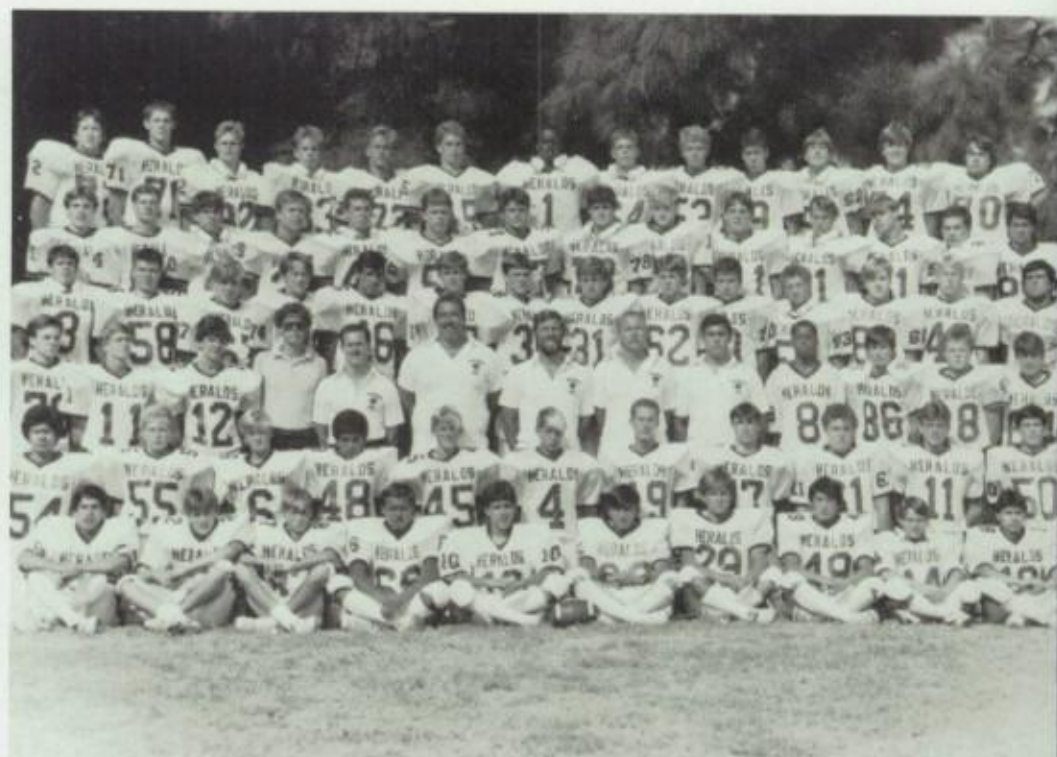

"Oh, baby! The turning point was that goal line stand," Caffrey said, "Our defense did a job. Ontario played us tough. They came right at us with all kinds of formations on offense and their defense was just tough. They held Ortega to less than 100 yards and held our offense to a season low 194. I knew going into this game it would be a very tough, tough one. In the first half, Ontario just played better. Our offense would move the ball on them, but then we would get down inside their territory and turn the ball over. Or we couldn't convert on any third down plays."

The final Herald's score came on a 30-yard field goal with 3:15 left by Wharton, who said, "I came in here with revenge. It was the Ontario game that I got hurt. That's when I fractured my neck. I had to play against them one more time. I kicked the ball real well." One couldn't ask for a more stunning finish to a successful year.

Going for Gold

Vigorous, energetic, persistent and united. These words are only a few that could describe the J.V. football team. The team was recognized this year because of the pride and the hard work of each player. This year two new quarterbacks, David Coehlo and Blair Ashworth, played with other new starting freshmen. Ryan Rowlands was one of the most noticeable players as he started as running back and was excellent at the position of outside linebacker. Everyone was sorry to hear about Ryan Rowlands breaking his collarbone along with Sean Gerold breaking his wrist.

One of the most outstanding games was against Ontario Christian as the team lost two of the best players, unfortunately, but, with their determination destroyed them with a score of 35-7. One of the biggest disappointments was the loss against Valley Christian — 28 to 0.

"Unity was what the Herald's J.V. football team was all about," exclaimed Don Unruh, "in the games all the different parts of the team had to work together because if the line didn't block well, the running backs had a difficult time increasing yards . . . we all had to work together as one." Solid coaching and a balanced team was what this football season was all about. As fans, students, and friends, we are extra proud to say the J.V. football team is part of Whittier Christian High School.

Seniors Prove Seniority

Each year the excitement builds up to the first official Powder Puff game. This year the seniors moved ahead to win the contest. Senior captain Tracy Balchowsky said the hard work and the practice paid off. The freshman who were coached by Mrs. Searcy were defeated by the sophomores who were lead by Mr. Barcroft. The juniors who were coached by Mr. Bowman were defeated by the seniors who were lead by Joe Melendez. The seniors have conquered the championship for the past two years. Each game was held during lunch so that the student body could get involved.

Destination Unknown

The sweat on each runner's body could be seen and the tiresome pain in their legs could be felt by the spectators because they were with them all the way because of the determined look on each one's face.

The Boys' Cross-Country Team finished an impressive second in league. The key meet of the season was one against Maranatha Christian which provided more competition and confidence toward each runner. The goal was reached this year by excepting to place between fifth and tenth place in C.I.F.

"Training your mind to concentrate on each step being its fastest is probably the key to victory," stated Steve Diaz, "as for the team we were fun-loving, encouraging, easy going and extremely hardworking." The cross-country team had many newcomers who, suprisingly enough, were very successful. As for the returners, Greg Buckner, Dieter Tack and Joe Gutierrez were outstanding. Greg Buckner, the key runner, worked all summer to strive for-what cross-country is all about — victory and pride.

"This year's team learned to become responsible and to deal with defeat and bounce back," responded Mr. Pate, the coach. Cross-country is a team sport and with determination, encouragement and most importantly, confidence the runners can win the battles. Excellent job done Cross-Country!

A Change of Pace

This season was Mr. Pate's first year as coach of the Girls' Cross-Country team. The adjustment of coaching the girls was made easier with help from Victor Valencia. The girls' team was strong and competitive.

The girls enjoyed trying to make their workout fun, but they knew when it was time for a serious workout. The team was led by Sherice Rivera and Stephanie Ortez, Carol Reed, in her first year out, and Tami Ten Elshof provided the team with consistency. There were four other new runners who made contributions — Robin Cook, Denise Dever, Yvonne Quesada and Julie Van Nyhuis. Commented Robin Cook, "I found it rewarding to run; it means a lot to me."

One of the biggest meets of the season was against Ontario Christian, who had won the Olympic League last year. The girls defeated Ontario by seven points. The girls finished 3rd in the Olympic League Championship, but just missed qualifying for the CIF finals after finishing 5th in the preliminary heat. In the end, Mr. Pate felt finishing 2nd was not a failure.

Positive Spiking

Despite a coaching change, key players injured, and losses to Melodyland and Ontario Christian, the girls' varsity volleyball team stuck together and would not give up. They finished 2nd in league with a 11-3 record and overall they were 16-5.

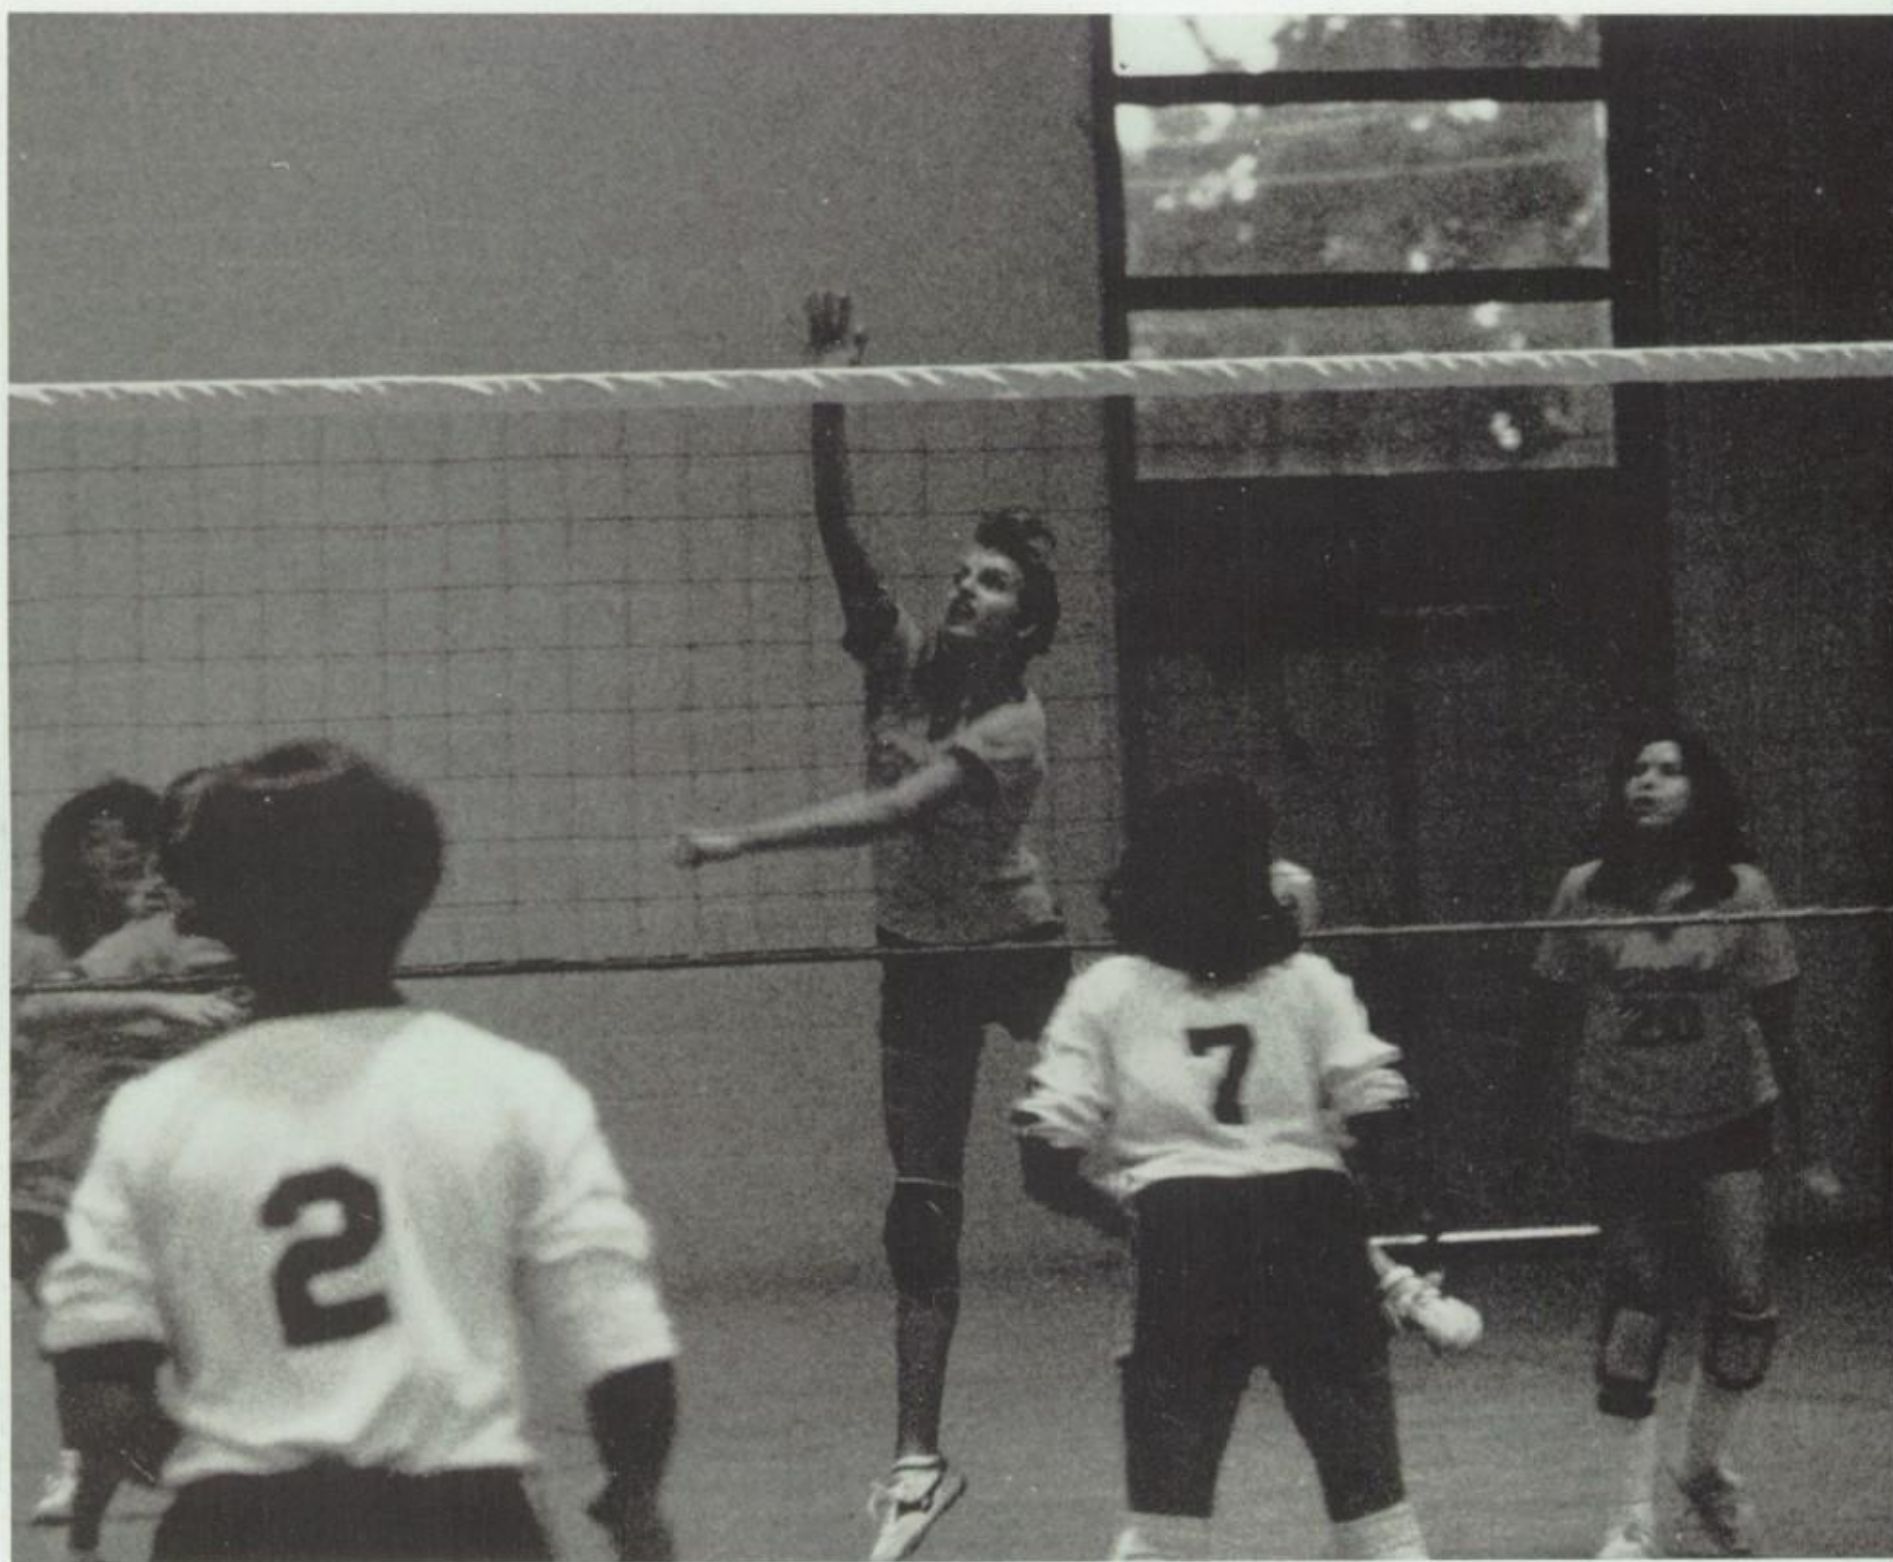

One of the most exciting games for the squad was the second game against Maranatha. The team lost the first two games, but they rallied and won the last three games to win the match. Coach Herron felt this was the turning point of the season.

The Heralds were led by team captain Judy Anker and the hustling of Missy Persons. Judy Anker summed it up best when she said, "Overall we had a winning season and we all became the best of friends." The morale of the team was boosted throughout the season by an increase in support from the school. More people, cheerleaders, students, and parents alike, showed up to cheer the team to victory. All in all, positives outweighed the negatives, and the girls with Coach Herron finished the year with satisfaction.

J.V. Demonstrates Skill

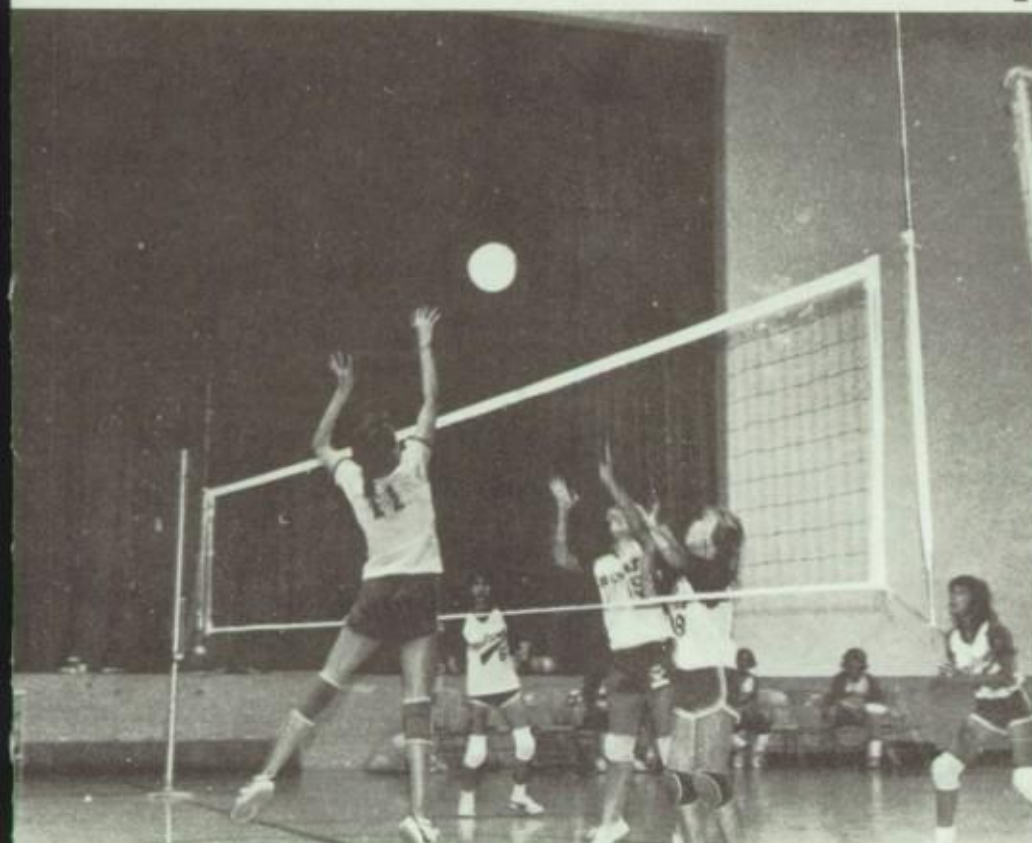

The season started off with great anticipation. With the 11-3 record, the team excelled throughout the year. Coach Allison Fisher expressed that the team should play as a unit and work together. J.V. team member Toya Ellis commented that they owed their success to the love the team shared. Besides playing volleyball games the team did other activities together. Such as going to a Undercover concert and going out to dinner. Special awards were given to Mary Ann McIntosh for most improved, Debbie Quintana for most inspirational, and Tonya Ellis for most valuable. Coaches award was given to Melanie Keefer for encouraging attitude.

Bump, Set, Spike!

Fun, wild, crazy, and dedicated," are some words that could be used to describe the freshman volleyball team. The team had a lot of spirit as well as talent. The girls' spirit came from their eagerness to learn the sport, and the desire they had to work together as a team, as well as many other reasons, as Wendy Miller admits, "I play volleyball so that when I go to the beach in the summer, I can meet cute guys." It was these kinds of attitudes, as well as the freshmen's naturally wild spirit that brought the girls together. Vicky Ruohomaki commented, "We're growing together as a team." It was the girls' spirit that allowed the team to function as a unit. Coach Kathy Bihr was able to motivate the team to practice hard and to improve. Wendy

Miller claimed, "During the game we're mellow, but during practice, off the court we're hyper." The girls were able to work together and to make their team have a successful year. During the year, a great deal of talent shone through. Coach Bihr stated, "When these girls become a little older, they will make a great team."

Excitement and consistency made up the soccer season. The team had many strong and determined competitors. Chris Coral was the most consistent player along with captains Steve Welch and Matt Persons. Dan Sampson — offensive leader and Eric Tucker — defensive leader also showed excellent performances.

As coach, Mark Schrock responded, "I believe the hardest lesson and responsibility for a soccer player to learn is to play and use self control, which is a spiritual characteristic. Overall, the soccer team had an excellent season but due to C.I.F. regulations had to forfeit some games whether wins or losses.

J.V. Soccer Excels

Coach Dave Herron brought the J.V. Soccer Team through a splendid season. He commented that the team far exceeded his and others' expectations. The team worked very hard and finished with an 11-6-2 overall record and a 7-3-2 league record, which put them in 2nd place in the Olympic League. Coach Herron also confessed that this was his last year coaching soccer and that he really wanted the team to excel. Two of the most valuable players were Brian Culp and Erik Rivera. The J.V. team received a lot of support from the student body. The home games were held at Whittier Christian and each game was filled with enthusiasm and excitement. Erik Rivera commented that "it was exciting playing against competitive teams, especially Valley Christian." Each game was filled with suspense and kept the spectators coming back.

Runnin' Heralds

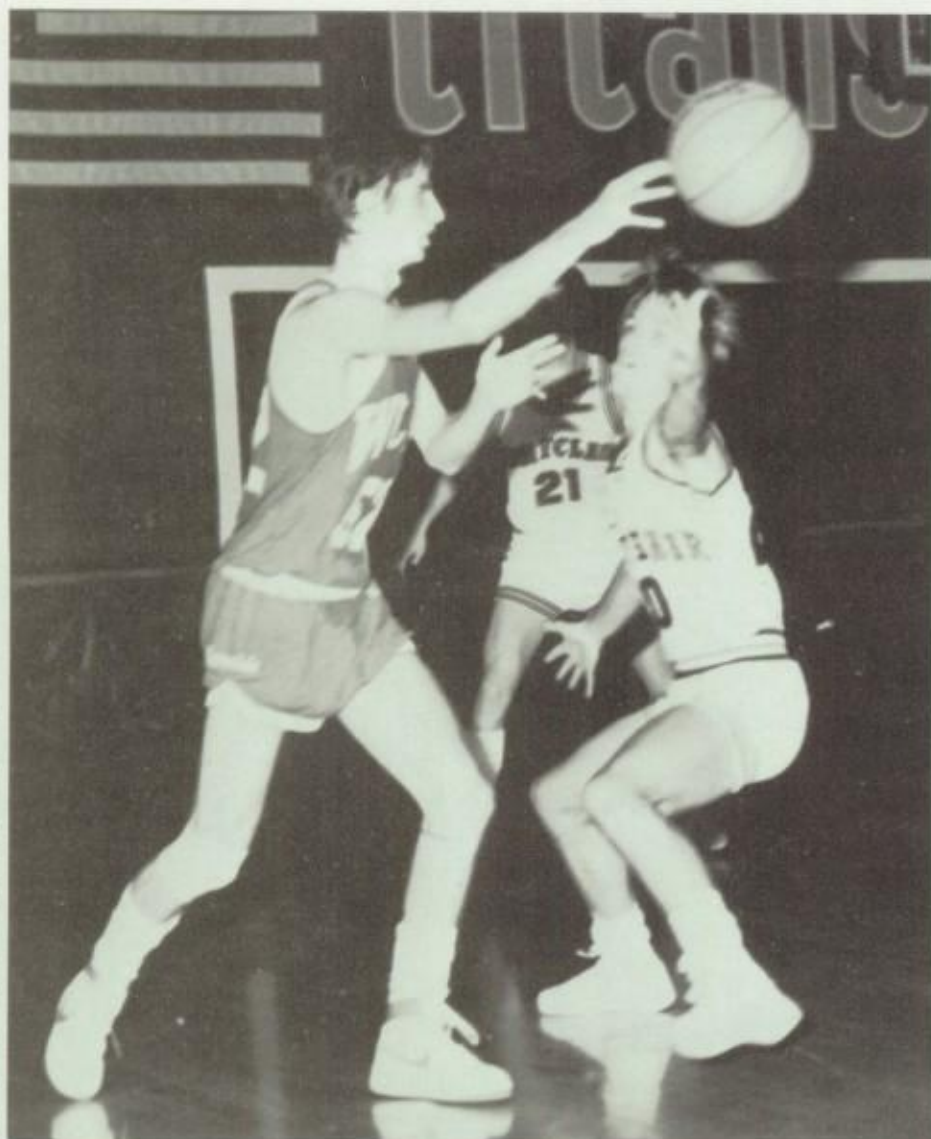

Diligence, dedication, and intelligence were all aspects that the Runnin' Heralds possessed this year. These qualities helped them to capture another Olympic League title, their third straight, and fifth in the last six years. Coach Bill Cuccia described the team as "An extremely dedicated, caring, hard working group," and "the smartest group" that he's had. Looking at the team before the season began, coach Cuccia was just hoping to make it in the playoffs. They had struggled during the early part of the season, but at the Carpenteria Tournament, just after Christmas, they turned things around and started winning consistently.

In league play, the Heralds shot off past everyone going 12-0. They then faced Ontario Christian on the second to last game of the regular season and after going down by ten points early, they just couldn't get on track. They finished first, though, in the Olympic League with a 13-1 record, and going into the C.I.F. playoffs, they had won sixteen of their last seventeen games. Danny Swanner had a banner year, passing his brother, Scott Swanner (1984 graduate), in points per game to hold the new WCHS record. Dave Murrane, Mike Goodcase, Dean Reihm, and floor leaders Gary Botka and Kevin Chavez also contributed greatly to the Runnin' Heralds successful season.

J.V. Shows Talent

Closeness was really evident in the play of the J.V. Basketball Team This year. A somewhat disappointing season record-wise did not spoil the team's outlook on themselves. They really were a quality basketball team finishing at 11-11 overall, but winning their second straight Cathedral Tournament, and never giving up or "packing it in" until the job was done.

Some strong players this year included Doug Newby, Dave Burton, and Mike Norman. Although bothered by consistency, Coach Phil Underwood felt they had good quickness and shooting ability. An exciting game this year for the J.V.'s was their league opener against Maranatha. Down by fifteen at the beginning of the fourth quarter, the Heralds fought back to send the game into overtime. They then proceeded in knocking off the Minutemen and starting off league play on the right foot.

FROSH BASKETBALL

Frosh Take League

To say that the Freshman Basketball Team had a successful season would be an understatement. They achieved the two main goals they set out to by winning another Olympic League Championship and learning to give their best possible effort every time they stepped on the court, whether during the games or at practice.

Team leaders this season included Erik Martin (scoring leader), Joel Burton (rebounding leader), and Lanny Carrillo (defensive and floor leader). The skills of these players and the enthusiasm and hustle of the rest of the team helped make it a very exciting season.

Two of the most exciting games included a game in the first round of league play at Orange Lutheran. The Heralds had been behind the entire game, but with two minutes left in the game, they took the lead and never looked back. Another thriller included the last game of the season against Capo Valley Christian when the Heralds prevailed 53-36. Capo had been the only team to beat the Heralds in league play.

The players' commitment to a successful season, along with Coach Brown's experience and the talent of the team helped the Freshman Basketball Team capture another Olympic League Championship.

Second In League

Girls' Varsity Basketball played exceptionally well throughout this season. For the first time ever they placed second in league. Also for the first time, the team beat the Valley Crusaders 59-51. The girls had a special kind of "unity" and a strong desire to win. Cindy Vyskocil was the strongest player overall averaging 25 pts. per game. Toya Ellis, defensively, was the key player averaging 9 pts. per game. The Varsity Basketball team was very committed, hard working and will show us their stuff again next year since they will all be returning.

Girls Show Enthusiasm

Determination and hard work brought the girls' basketball team through a hard season. Coach Jon Genberg wanted each player to play to their potential. One of the most valuable players was Ronna Lei Takahashi because she had a spirited attitude. The most competitive teams that the girls faced were Valley Christian and Ontario Christian. Coach Genberg commented that J.V. team had a difficult time this year because of all the last year members moving up to varsity. One of the teams many goals was to achieve patience. Throughout the year each girl got to know each other and had the opportunity to share. Although the team approached the season with enthusiasm they're looking forward to a more successful season next year.

Pinning to Victory

Excellent, young, hardworking, fun loving, were some of the words Coach Wilson used to describe the wrestling team. J.H.S. had an outstanding wrestling team. Although most of the talent on the team was very young, they were able to reign supreme on the mats and win league. This was the first year that one of the wrestlers made it to CIF; Casey Carroll placed sixth in that competition at Azusa High School. The reason for such success was that the team was very dedicated and also willing to put forth a great deal of effort and hard work. Nick Flores and Casey Carroll were able to lead the team to its potential by being examples of outstanding athletes. More than eighty percent of the team were freshmen and sophomores. This young talent promised the continued success for the wrestling team.

Jenna Swims to Victory

“Seeing her make the team was the best!” exclaimed Sharon McKendree, Jenna Johnson’s mother. A student at Whittier Christian had the opportunity to participate in the Games of the XXIII Olympiad. Her freestyle team achieved victory in the 4 x 100 Relay taking the gold. She received a silver medal in the 100m butterfly. Jenna is very motivated to compete and in the summer of 1984 she had a chance to do just that. The pressure during the time trials was intense and just making the team was a victory for Jenna. After beating Mary T. Meagher at the time trials with a record time, Jenna then had the opportunity to swim against her at the Olympic games. This time, however, Meagher was able to over take Jenna and claim the gold, giving Jenna the opportunity to win the silver for the U.S.

Along with being an emotional high summer for Jenna it also allowed Jenna to mature and to have a chance to witness two other swimmers at the Games. It seemed as if the Lord opened all the right doors for Jenna and she was able to come from her home town of Santa Rosa to live in Whittier and then to participate in the Olympic Games. The Lord did not do this without a lot of hard work on Jenna’s part. She trained six to seven times a week along with being involved in a strenuous weight training program. Jenna’s mom explained that “Jenna is very motivated to compete,” and this is why she has been able to go and put out 100% effort in all she does.

Jenna has been given a unique gift from God, and with her warm personality she will be able to share her faith with other athletes on a larger scale. It is hoped by all that she will continue her success into the 1988 Olympic Games in Korea. Good Luck, Jenna!

Goes for Third

Two down and how many more to go? That's the question this year for the Varsity Baseball team as they looked to capture their third straight Olympic League title. After a very successful season last year, coach Doug Domene looked forward to an even better season this year. Key players this year include seniors Kraig Johnson at second base, Eric Tucker in the outfield and pitcher Kevin Chavez pacing the staff. Some tremendous sophomore contributors include Mike Neal and Aaron Arrendondo.

The team is viewed as an offensive club. As coach Domene puts it "We should be a strong hitting club, but the key will be how well we play defense." Another goal for coach Domene and the team besides winning their third consecutive league championship is to reach the finals of the C.I.F. playoffs. "We should do well in league play," explained coach Domene, "and we hope to do well in C.I.F. We must play together and support each others effort!"

J.V. Consistency

Winning Olympic League championships has sort of become a habit for coach Tom Caffrey and his J.V. Baseball Team. The team has won three straight league championships and were in good shape for their fourth this season. Along with coach Caffrey, new coach Phil Bravo helped to improve the team with more discipline and encouragement.

Players that stood out included Gregg Hayden, Don Unruh, Matt Wilkerson, Sean Gerold, and Jay Acocks. The experience, defense, and hitting of this ball club shines brightly during the season, and according to pitcher Ralph Ferguson, "We should take the Olympic League title again this year, providing there are no major injuries." Some goals the team set included glorifying the Lord and capturing the league championship. The experience, along with the discipline coach Bravo brought helped assure the J.V. Baseball team of another successful season.

The Freshman Baseball Team had a lot of ability. The team was well rounded and all positions were well covered. Some of the leaders were Dave Little and Mike Cabrae. When asked why Coach Genberg likes to coach, he responded "that the teams they play are of a higher level and that is what makes the season exciting." The team practiced very hard every day after school and that assured the team of a very successful season. One of their toughest competitors was Mader Dei. Each coach is confident that this year the Freshman Baseball Team will excel.

Varsity . . . A Big Hit

“Be devoted to one another in brotherly love. Honor one another above yourselves. Never be lacking in zeal, but keep your spiritual fervor, serving the Lord.” was the verse the Varsity softball team coached by Ruth Sutton, tried to follow. As the verse says, the team strove to be unified, to put others above themselves, and to play their best at each game. Miss Sutton commented that a successful season meant being “committed to each other.”

Some of the key team members were:

Sarah Beattie and Cindi Scaffide — the two returning pitchers; Michelle Loomis — center field; Kim Calzada — shortstop; Suzy Reed — catcher; Patrice Godwin — second base; and Chris Wright — left field.

J.V. Slides into the Season

The J.V. Softball Team was a "big hit" from the very start. The team practiced at least two hours after school which was a lot of work but it paid off. The team put in much hard work into their practices and games because of being well-disciplined and individually coached.

Diane Martinez, the team's pitcher and Mich Porter, third baseman, were two of the team's most outstanding performers.

"I feel I'm getting a lot out of it because I have a chance to grow closer with the team and improve my skills in softball," responded Kelly Zamorano.

Overcoming Obstacles

To win the league championship," exclaimed Mr. Edemano, boys' track coach. As he listed the main goal of the boys' track team. Equally important was "to be a good witness with our Christian faith to those we compete against and, "to help athletes become the best athlete they can be."

The boys' track team was busy during the season with practice everyday after school and weekly meets. In addition to the invitational meets, where many schools got together to compete, the team was involved in dual meets where only two teams competed.

Some of the key team members were: Mark Ortega — hurdles, 440; Phil Herrera — sprints; Dieter Tack — distance; Steve Wilch — distance; and Dave Mur-rane — jumps.

Stepping Forward

To win league championship . . . be a good witness with our Christian faith to those we compete against . . . and to help athletes become the best athletes they can be." These were the three major goals Mr. Endemano set for the team before the track season began. Katie Reeves stated,

"Mr. Endemano really puts a lot of effort to help each person become the best athlete they can be." Marnie Nair pointed out that, "Mr. Endemano helps us relate our attitude and our Christian witness to our running with devotions and prayers before practice." Kathleen Cramer also explained "that this year had a special attitude toward the girls' team, and it has helped us improve." This special attitude has helped bring out much of the talent on this year's team, and has allowed for an all around successful year.

Devoted and Dedicated

The varsity cheerleaders strove to obtain unity and to attend each major spectator sport, and also the sports that did not draw as many fans.

During the summer, they met every morning to plan for the year's events such as individual parties for all the sports teams and getting ready for the National Cheerleading Association camp. In preparing for the NCA camp, they did aerobics, had devotions, and suffered through hard practices. At the camp, their efforts all payed off when they won the Spirit Award and were first runners-up in the Award of Excellence.

The squad enjoyed the fellowship and friends they made with all the sports. The girls frequently performed at a convalescent hospital. During the fall sports season the girls kidnapped the football and volleyball players.

The CIF Football Championship was a very exciting memory for the entire squad because they had prepared and worked for the opportunity all year. Their advisors, Miss Moore and Miss Dobrenen, had a positive impact and were very supportive. All of the members of the squad agreed that this year was a very successful one.

Twirling to Unite

The flagsters' goals were to make the minor teams more recognized, to give them more encouragement and to work on being more united. This taught each girl more responsibility and flexibility.

Participating in camp at Whitier College was part of the flagsters' hard work. They learned many new tricks and became extremely close with the Maranatha flagsters.

"Being a flagster is something you have to want to do," exclaimed Lyn Hornbaker. The flagsters put in excessive amounts of time practicing and have made everyone proud.

Sharing & Caring — J.V. Cheer

The J.V. Cheerleading squad strove to reach out to others by making cookies and posters for each football player. These were only some of the responsibilities of a J.V. cheerleader. Hard work over the long summer helped bring the squad together in friendship. During the summer the J.V.

cheerleading squad traveled to Santa Barbara to compete at the NCA Cheerleading Camp at Westmont College. They achieved two superior ribbons and one excellent. They also learned new chants and cheers. One of the goals of the team was to support all sports equally by attending games and encouraging the players. Each cheerleader spent time visiting convalescent homes which helped them to share their Christianity with others. The time spent together contributed to an excellent J.V. cheerleading squad. They were more than a squad — they were friends.

The Race Is on . . . to Win

SPIRIT is only one way to describe the Pep Rallies the cheerleaders organized to encourage student involvement. They succeeded in making every rally original. Each rally was held during the school day with the exception of one night rally. The night rally was held in the hope that more would attend. The flagsters did an excellent job in helping the cheerleaders promote school spirit. Varsity Cheerleader Jacque Hodges commented that the student body helped demonstrate the support each team needed. Miss Costley, Mr. Bravo, Mr. Cuccia, Mrs. Dobbs, Miss Landfear and other faculty members added a lot of enthusiasm to the rallies. They dressed up as cheerleaders, participated in pie eating contests, and tried to keep students from wandering off campus for an extra long lunch. Each Pep Rally helped generate excitement for all upcoming games. The Cheerleading squads and the Flagsters gave their best to support all the teams and promote school spirit.

Our Labor Force

Our secretaries were the labor force here at WCHS. Our school could not operate without them. Mrs. Dickinson, attendance secretary, summarized the characteristics of the secretaries with, "they are hardworking, helpful, and kind to each other, students, and teachers."

When questioned about the most memorable excuse for being tardy, she reminisced, A student came in late to school with a story about a sick horse and having to wait for the vet." Now that's a good one!

The secretaries felt that the relationship between them and the students was one of respect for each other. When asked to comment on the secretaries' opinion of the students, Mrs. Dickinson replied, "We are so busy with 'office duties' it is hard to visit and get to know them. I personally wish I had more time to spend on each student who comes in." Even though the secretaries enjoy their jobs, they acknowledged that their favorite day of the week was "Friday at 3:30!"

Behind the Scenes Action

Mr. Bill McKinley
Superintendent

The administrators of WCHS during the 1984-85 school year were caring and dedicated people. The combined efforts of the board members and administration brought together a school year filled with improvements and progress.

Goals that were worked on and achieved were many. On the top of the list was the improvement of student Morale. Mr. Bill McKinley felt that students had "more pride in their school" than two years ago, when he began as superintendent. Also at the top of the list was improved communication with parents which was accomplished by monthly newsletters. A revised and further developed curriculum was also a goal.

As these goals were reached unity between administration, teacher and student was reached. Students were able to talk with the administrators and the counsellors felt more students were seeking counselling. With all of these good things happening, how could Mrs. Jan Mustin not say that the students were "really neat kids"?

Light Unto Our Paths

Bible classes were a unique part of WCHS which set us apart from public schools. Students took it for four years. Mr. Long, the junior Bible teacher, replied that Bible was important because it applied to the students' eternities.

When asked if students of WCHS should study Bible for all four years, there were varied responses: "Certainly, sometimes I wish we didn't have to but I know there are a lot more values to learn," "Yes, because taking a Bible class is one of the benefits of going to a Christian school and we should take advantage of that benefit," and "Yes, every time you study it you always learn something new."

English Expands

The English Department went through some significant changes last summer, thanks mainly to Miss Dianne Landfear and Mrs. Kerry Veale. The first of these changes was a curriculum development where they established a uniformed program for each grade. They felt this was necessary so that each grade would study specifics and nothing would overlap. Therefore, students would not be able to complain, "We did this last year!"

The second idea they came up with was a guide to help with term papers; The Whittier Christian High School Research Paper Guide. The purpose for the booklet was to create consistency in the format for term papers. In addition, the English Department welcomed two new teachers to the staff: Mrs. Tammy Friesen and Mrs. Lori Radcliffe. The enthusiasm of these new teachers, along with these ideas presented by Mrs. Veale and Miss Landfear all helped to make this past year a success for the English Department.

1. Mr. Domene instructs a freshman on how to do the homework assignment. 2. Tom Lynch works hard on his English assignment. 3. Diane Woodward takes time out to read her favorite novel. 4. Mrs. Ashworth helps Todd Merizan read his book. 5. Miss Moore instructs the frolicking freshmen.

Diverse Languages and Cultures

Diverse languages for diverse cultures exemplified the History and Foreign language departments. Many changes arose to make it an extraordinary year.

History was not just a History class. With the election action in the air students and teachers were eager to be involved and aware. Government classes borrowed the school's VCR to watch debates between President Reagan and Walter Mondale. They hope to purchase a VCR system for next year.

The Advanced Placement history classes enjoyed the elections by meeting at one house to watch the results.

Another change was the use of Time magazine. Mr. Pate stated, "We started this in order to broaden the kids' minds on what's happening in the world today."

The Foreign Language department has also gone through many changes. More trips and activities have helped the students expand their vocabulary. The teachers felt that going on the Europe trip not only would expand their vocabulary but would broaden their cultural awareness. Mr. Fairbanks' Spanish III class went down to Mexico to an Orphanage. They served the Lord by helping others and at the same time expanded their vocabulary. All and all Foreign Language and History proved to be an exciting and most successful time of learning.

Calculating and Formulating

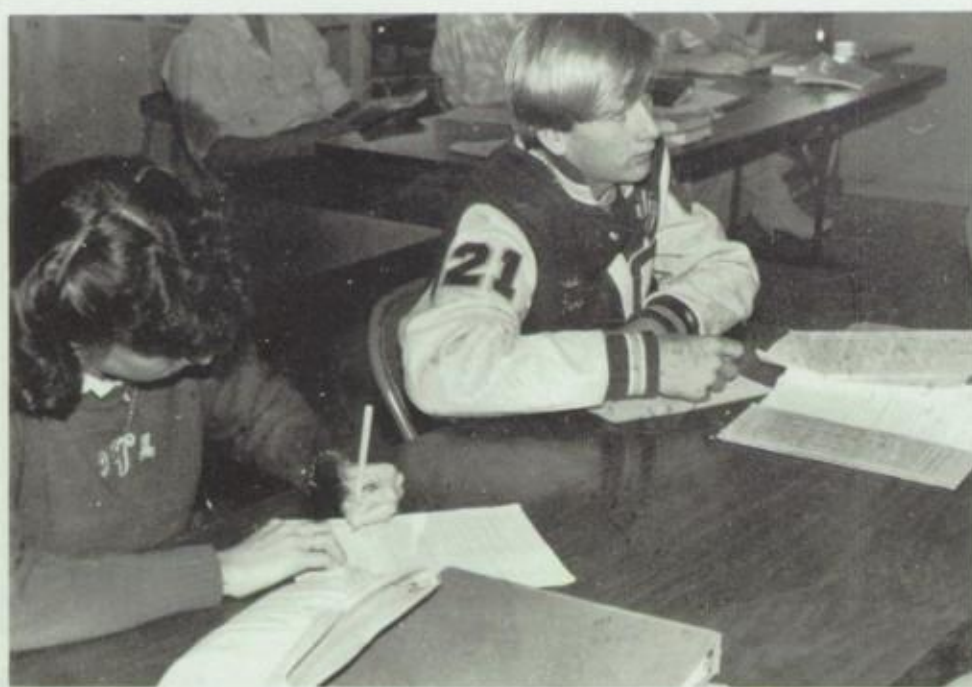

This year in Math an exciting Math Club has been benefitting many students. Besides competitions, the club also offered tutoring to those who need it. According to Miss Teresa Turner, "It's slow, but getting organized. We've had one math competition, and four or five students are now tutoring." Some of the high scorers in the competition included Ron Johnson, Charlie Simpson, and David Oh. Although there were larger math classes this year, Miss Turner stated, "Our goal is to push students beyond what they thought they could do."

Science also expanded with a new teacher, Mr. Mick Dean. The expanding science department was hindered early in the year by theft. One evening, most of the microscopes and a few of the balances were stolen. The new teachers added freshness to the classes' agenda and all in all, the losses were outweighed by the gains. The math and science departments had undergone a few changes, both planned and accidental. The changes became improvements because of the positive attitudes of both the teachers and the students.

1. Mrs. Costley counts the number of students talking in class. 2. Mr. Mills tries to calm down his excited freshman science class. 3. Heather Holt instructs Eric Wood on a calculus assignment. 4. Fred Ferguson contemplates the structure of a DNA molecule. 5. Mrs. Dobbs corrects a test, while the class keeps themselves diligent. 6. Tom Chan is amused at the concept of cell reproduction. 7. Bill McCarron busily occupies himself with a chemistry worksheet.

A Break in the Day

Drivers' education and physical education was a "break in the day" for many students. After concentrating on stiff academic subjects, it was nice for students to participate in fun sports and games.

Mr. Phil Bravo and Mr. Barry Drake, the two drivers' education teachers, helped make every sophomore's dream a reality. They taught their students the mechanics of driving safely. They also stressed the importance of driving defensively and not driving under the influence of alcohol. Each student was required to research and present a report on drunk driving. This was a very profitable assignment where students became aware of the hazards of drunk driving.

Physical education was one of the most popular classes at Whittier Christian. It was a time when students have fun with their friends exercising and competing with each other. The students not only play the different sports but they learn the rules and the correct way of playing. The physical education teachers, Mrs. Kathy Grant, Mr. Don Steward, Mrs. Sandi Searcy, Mr. Dave Herron, and Miss Ruth Sutton all agree that physical education should be a refreshing break in everyone's day.

The Practical Side of Things

Business and Arts are practical classes that were taken by the students of WCHS. The chairman of the Business department, Mr. Brown, taught accounting, business law, and algebra 1. Mr. Brown thought that it was important to take business classes in order to develop skills in dealing with personal records and also to serve as an introduction to a career in which a student has an interest. Mrs. Frembling, the typing and shorthand teacher, emphasized the fact that these classes were very "marketable skills."

Classes such as art, crafts, drafting, drama, woodshop, photography, and home economics were creative classes that would help students later on in life. According to sophomore Rose Cortez, art was "a way to express your feelings," and she also added, "It's fun!"

Yearbook Story

Newspaper Spread Story

What's a newspaper all about? Interviews, writing, editing, typesetting, pasteup, and rushing the paper to the printer.

But a newspaper is more than that. The staff that produces the paper will put their unique stamp on that paper. And unique does describe this year's Herald staff!

This year we have co-Editors, Heather Holt and Robert Sturr. Heather is in charge of the typesetting process, pasteup, and final proofing. She does a wonderful job of training our pasteup artists, and making sure the final product looks good. Heather had a premonition about this article, but it was premature! ... premonition about this article, but it was premature!

Robert, in charge of the story-writing process, brainstormed for story ideas with the staff and works with the section editors to assign stories to reporters and photographers to our photographer. Robert is notorious around campus for his political convictions. How does it feel to be a lone Democrat in a sea of Republicans? "Protest is the highest form of patriotism," says Robert.

Evan Holloway is our reporter. But Evan does a lot more than your average reporter. Evan creates modern art on the chalkboard, does sculpture with foam packaging, and, given 30 seconds will provide a witty/humorous/sarcastic comment on any topic.

We have four pasteup artists/typesetters, who work with the computer, with x-acto knives (these people are dangerous!), with dummyming, with proofreading, with making sure the newspaper is a perfect as possible before sending it to the printer. These people must be industrious, skilled at details, picky when necessary, accurate, perfectionists. And, like most obsessive-compulsives, they get a little crazy at times. Gisele Muratalla is most noted for her long fingernails; she types by remote control. Kristin Maloney puts her foot down when it comes to typesetting, but she's hot stuff on the old art boards. And there's the talented twosome of Anne Nguyen and Shari Kobayakawa, totally tittering as they type.

Business manager Jennifer O'Donald looks cute and sweet, but when she gives potential advertisers her cold, steely, threatening look, they toe the line right away.

Our news editor, John Mendenhall, keeps everyone inspired with his serious, nose-to-the-grindstone attitude. He's in charge of news stories and he has a very important job. When asked, "What does the news editor do?" John replied, "Just make something up." Actually, John has an acute nose for the news, and writes opinion columns as well. (He's a real "dude.")

Cindy Adams is our opinion editor. Cindy holds strong opinions about "trendies, old green Pintos, and men who wear KISS boots."

Sports editor, Michelle Leon, is described by fellow staff members as "creative," "buoyant," "good writer," "sincere," and "meets deadlines." In her spare time Michelle enjoys doing makeovers and cartoons. Michelle also likes interviewing coaches over lunch at nearby restaurants (pretty clever for a junior!)

What would a newspaper be without pictures? Not much. And where would our staff be without Tracey? Well...

Yes, Tracey Balchowsky is an essential part of the character of this year's staff. No class period is boring with Tracey present. Tracey comes up with bizarre, creative ideas when not busy with her photography work or driving around in the "Herald-mobile." She is an avid cartoon-maker and is working on covering all four walls of the classroom with her art work. (Remember "Two Dips and a Dad?")

Thru any situation, she provides the knowledge and experience to aid her students. However, the relationship she has with her students is not an average one. Her kindness and exuberance have helped her achieve close friendships with them. The WCHS newspaper family really appreciates all of Mrs. Veale's hard work and dedication to the production of The Herald. 4. John Mendenhall points out to Mrs. Veale some uncorrected errors. 4. Evan Holloway and Kristin Malloney guard The Herald equipment. 5. Giselle Muratalla and Michelle Leon add enthusiasm to their class. 6. Shari Kobayakawa looks over Anne Nguyen's hot news flash. 7. Tracey Balchowsky, photographer, shows her artistic ability.

Yearbook Year

What exactly did the Trumpet Staff do? To the casual observer, all they did was sit around and socialize. Rumors had it that they had wild, all-night, worknights and their only complaint was that the staff never had enough pictures. The staff did have fun, but there was a lot of work involved also.

JUNE — "All new and old staff members meet for a bar-b-que and pool party!" The highlight of the evening, where the old welcomed in the new, was kidnapping April Smith, the new editor, from work and throwing her into the pool, fully clothed, of course.

EARLY SEPTEMBER — "Ugh. Do we have to sell ads?" Ad sales were not everyone's favorite thing to do, but for a few weeks work, they brought in the bucks.

MIDDLE/LATE SEPTEMBER — "What's a quad-pack?" "How do you crop pictures?" "Where do I start?" The beginning of the year was a time of learning; however, most of the learning had to come by doing.

OCTOBER — "The deadline is in four weeks. I'd better get started." "I don't have any pictures!" "The deadline is in three weeks, I'd better get started . . . I still have no pictures!" So it went until about a week before the deadline — then we got our pictures. The deadline was met, and then we could breathe easily until December. One down, three to go!

NOVEMBER — "I'm sure it should be easier now after we have been through one deadline." "Are all my ordered pictures taken?" "Have you interviewed everyone yet?" "The deadline isn't until next month, we have plenty of time." After the first big color deadline, everyone began to feel more confident and could afford to relax a little, but just a little.

DECEMBER — "Is she serious? If we don't finish on time we have to come and work during Christmas vacation!" December was literally filled with worknights, where everyone worked, ate bagels, worked more, ate popcorn, worked again, ate pizza . . . High metabolism and a little worry kept us from obesity and allowed us to celebrate deadline #2 at the staff Christmas party.

JANUARY — "Where are we going on retreat? We definitely need some relaxation!" With another deadline at the end of the month, the new year brought a lot of work. Tension was eased by laughing at all the cute pictures parents sent in of their little darlings for senior ads.

FEBRUARY — "Only one deadline left!!! When are we going on retreat?" "What about everything that happens after March, how will that get in the book?" since during March everything was to be turned in, everyone tried to finish their pages and dream of the time they'd be able to see them in yearbook form.

MARCH — "WE MADE IT!!" After all was finished and sent off to Taylor Publishing, everyone breathed a sigh of relief. We treated ourselves by going to Mammoth to ski for the weekend, something that all had looked forward to the entire year.

APRIL/MAY — "Now what?" Robin Harper, advisor, tried to maintain a semblance of structure in her classroom, but everyone did his own thing, from planning the slide presentation for the book distribution to catching up on homework that spring fever prevented the staff from doing at home.

JUNE — "They're here!" The finished product arrived and the staff was allowed first peek. The books were presented, and the old staff members could remember the year fondly while the new and returning staff members geared up for another go at it and another year!

Unforgettable

The year the 1984-1985 Whittier Christian High School Color Guard spent as a team could be described in one word: Unforgettable. This was the first year WCHS combined the drill team and tall flags to become one unit known as Color Guard, under the direction of Nancy Embrey. For the second semester, Becky Nielsen was the drill advisor. The idea behind combining the two into one was to promote unity among the marching units.

The squad of more than twenty-five girls started working together in July to prepare a camp routine. At camp in August, everyone became closer and united as a team. Many hours of after-school practice went toward performing in half-time at football games first semester and court competitions second semester. One of the things that pulled the team together was that they enjoyed being with each other and loved to talk. Summing up the whole year, many members agreed, "It was a learning experience."

Marching Heralds March in Style

WCHS was again blessed with a group of sixty-five talented individuals called the Marching Heralds. The band participated in many different activities. Besides the half-time shows at football games and a pep band at basketball games, the band was involved in parades where they won several 1st place trophies. Performing at Dodger Stadium and marching in the Main Street parade were some highlights of the year.

Ken Holt's responsibilities as the drum major and president of the band were basically to command the band and "keep them in line."

Mr. Opfer, director, commented that "the band is out there to represent the school and make them proud." But more importantly, the band is "to glorify God musically."

Unforgettable Spirit

This year's Spirit Week was filled with excitement. Each day students dressed in accordance with the theme of the day. Monday was Nerd/Clash Day. Here was a chance for the student body to discard normal, everyday attire and put on those hideous colors and long out-of-date styles. On Tuesday, students dressed for Tourist Day. Mickey Mouse ears, Hawaiian print shirts, semi-short shorts and stylish sunglasses were pulled out from the backs of closets. Little boys and old women appeared on Wednesday for Senior Citizen/Little Kids Day. Many brought bottles filled with Coke and wheelchairs to assist them through the day. Thursday dawned cold for Greek Day. Students were dressed in their best sheets and sandals, which certainly caused frost bite. School spirit was displayed Friday for Red and Gold Day. Red streaked hair and gold outfits were the style for the day. Spirit Week, with strange colors and unusual styles, was not soon forgotten.

Like a pimple on the face of the school year it came almost overnight and left its embarrassing mark. Spirit Week. A week of wild and exotic clothing; a week of the eccentric and outlandish; a week to break dress code; a week to be ourselves.

Did it all really happen? Will we ever respect ourselves again? Will we ever again look at Tom Soule (sr) and not see the fun-loving, lunch-toting nerd with Crisco in his hair? Will we ever forget the sight of loud bermudas and Hawaiian shirts worn by equally loud, camera-necked people? Will the memory of Mr. Bowman in his pajamas haunt us forever? When we lie in bed will we recognize the sheet we wore to school once? Will we forever remember Randy Aracher (fr) with yellow polka-dots in his red hair? And will the one question on everyone's mind be answered: How did Davin Rhuomaki (sr) go six periods without a shirt and not get caught?

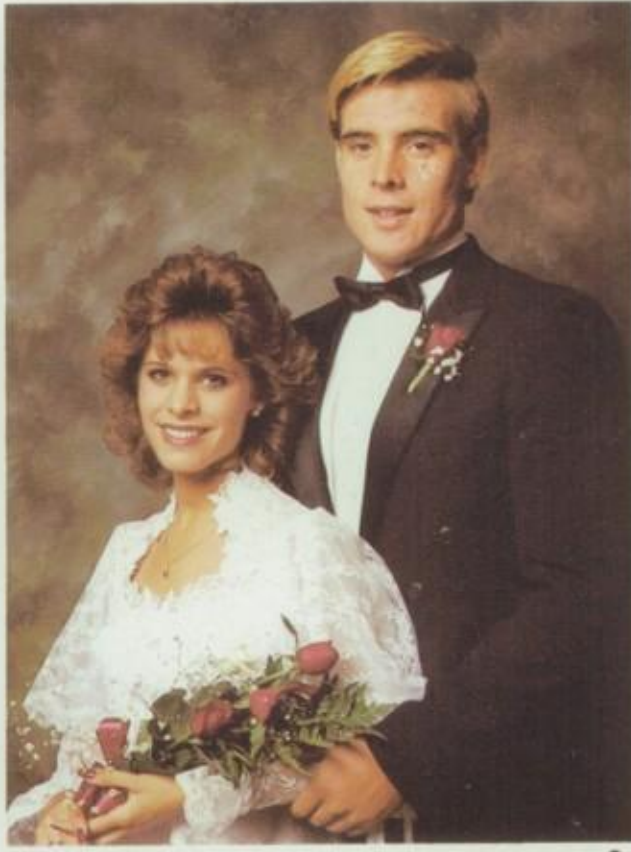

It's all over now. But, the memories will haunt us forever. We can only hope that our children won't find pictures of it in our year-books. Polyester has been returned to the closets. Sheets are back on the beds. Hair is back to natural colors. Normality has returned. Spirit Week has come and gone. We may never respect ourselves again. But hey, it worked. We won the football game didn't we? Submitted by — Evan Holloway, Reporter for The Herald.

Reflections of His Glory

As the crowd awaited anxiously the coronation of the 1984 Homecoming Queen on Saturday, October 20, a multimedia slide presentation was shown. Pictures of each princess' beautiful face and a few clips of their childhood were displayed across the two giant screens. Near the end of this colorful presentation each princess passed by the crowd waving nervously to the fans, knowing that the queen would soon be crowned.

The girls rode on top of brand new Datsun 300ZX's. The beauty of the cars was enhanced by the gorgeous traditional white formal dresses worn by each princess. As each father escorted his daughter down the 50-yard line, she was heard giving a prerecorded speech, thanking her family, friends, and especially the Lord, for being so dear and so true. Finally the moment came. The 1983 Homecoming Queen, Miss Tammy Spence, stepped out of her car and was escorted to the platform where the nervous girls were standing by the 1983 ASB President Brent Shubin. The present ASB President Greg Vettle walked forward with the envelope containing the students' choice for Queen. After the crown was passed over all five girls, Tammy set it on Michelle Cluck — its resting place for another year.

This was one night that will never be forgotten by the beautiful new Homecoming Court. 1. Queen Michelle Cluck and her escort Greg Vettle. 2. Princess Lisa McWhinney and Doug Irwin. 3. Princess Jacque Lehn and Todd Merizan. 4. Princess Colleen Swindoll and Eric Tucker. 5. Princess Lisa Hilte and Danny Swanner. 6. Michelle celebrates with her mother and father.

Styling in '85

Bright colored neons, classic lace, delicate angora sweaters, unique hair styles, bold letterman jackets, and the traditional casual look all were different, yet blended together to make "85" a stylish year.

One could easily distinguish the different styles throughout the campus. The bright colored "trendies" could be seen from afar. While, on the other hand, the romantic lace and angoras added a touch of class, and once again we had our traditional letterman's jackets and casual look to make this past year's style a completely fashionable year.

In addition to the unique dress attire, there was a variety of hair styles. For instance, there was the familiar long, curly style along with the now popular short look, and the wild spiked cut. All of these accented style in "85."

Setting a Spiritual Standard

The ASB council had basically two goals in mind, the most important one being to set a spiritual standard for WCHS students and to work together as a group for the good of everyone in the school. Referring to her council, Miss Dodge, advisor of ASB, stated, "I have never worked with such a spiritual council before."

One of the busiest times of the year for ASB was planning and organizing Homecoming. It was the first time that a spiritual theme was chosen, Reflections of His Glory. Greg Vettel, ASB president, reflected back on the event, "It was a lot of work, but October 20th sure was a fun day! Praise the Lord for it!"

One of the strengths of ASB was its great leadership. This was especially apparent in Greg Vettel. Miss Dodge summed it up when she said, "Greg has demonstrated leadership qualities in organizing, delegating and spiritual leadership that is especially unique for a high school president."

The council looked toward Phillippians 1:6 which says "Being confident of this very thing, that He which hath begun a good work in you will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ." From this verse the ASB learned that only God is responsible for changing peoples' lives.

In order to promote unity within different groups on campus, a brand new idea was formed. The Whittier Christian Leaders in Action consisted of two representatives from each group throughout school who met together once every quarter to discuss goals, plan activities and talk about ideas to present to the administration. Because the representatives were from different groups, the ideas that were discussed "get filtered through the school. It's a chance to have good communication."

When asked to summarize the feeling behind ASB, Greg Vettel stated, "We are a group of young people striving to glorify God Almighty in everything we do."

Fun Raisers

Before school started in September, the A.S.B. council was busily preparing the activities for the upcoming year. Long hours of hard work were spent in concentration to make the activities successful.

The year started with the traditional, yet exciting Big Sister party and the all school state party. Then, Homecoming came with the unique "5th quarter" all school event. The A.S.B. felt that this proved to be successful due to the participation. As time moved on, the Christmas tree fund raiser came upon them again. Their goal was to make the sales smooth and organized. They achieved this by having two students from each organization help and enlisted parents help. After Christmas with a lot of thought and hard work, A.S.B. came up with the idea of Leaders in Action. This was a meeting with representatives from each activity on campus. Their purpose was to gather ideas and have the chosen representatives share with their activity about what they had learned. These were the types of activities that filled the first semester.

The second semester consisted of an all-school ski day to Gold Mine. Shortly following the ski trip, the Winter Semi-formal took place at Baxter Street. The winter semi-formal proved successful and A.S.B. was pleased. In April, the popular donkey basketball game was held. This event consisted of class spirit competitions and games against classes. Next, the A.S.B. had to hold the A.S.B. elections for the following year. They made many exciting new changes. Finally, the annual Sadie Hawkins took place with fun and excitement. A.S.B. considered the year one which showed "unity and spiritual growth within our school."

Chapel Strives for His Glory

To strive to glorify God was the Chapel Committee's goal. To achieve such a goal they needed excellent leaders, and the committee had them. Brian Szerenyi and Marguerite Martins, co-chaplains worked along with Miss Dodge to obtain school unity. One way they did this was by getting more students involved. The students were able to give different announcements and say flag salutes and prayer. They also tried to introduce more music by christian artists, Brian Szerenyi quotes, "I feel the Christian music will help them grow and get more excited." Marguerite Martins was excited with speaker Gary Horton. "I feel it was a controversial chapel that brought up diverse opinions." Chapel committee along with their dedicated chaplains met on Monday nights and Wednesday during lunch to plan, pray, and do a lot of hard work. They really appreciated Miss Dodge because she always encouraged them and gave them extra support.

Stretcher Bearer

The first week of the second semester started out in a unique way. It brought out love, encouragement, and friendship to students and faculty. This was Spiritual Emphasis Week! Each day the students and teachers learned many valuable lessons from Mike Slater. He taught them to encourage one another. The theme "Stretcher Bearer" influenced all to support their friends as a strong stretcher. This helped students realize how important friendships should be. The week closed with the students meeting at Evangelical Free Church in Fullerton. The day consisted of choirs voices echoing in the church and a superb Comedy duo: Hicks and Cohagen. This uplifting week touched the lives of many and will be remembered by all.

Sing Your Praise

Mrs. Phyllis Smith, the choir director, taught her students much more than music and song. She helped them to minister to others in a special way. Their love for God was shown in their many performances.

The choir members united as they spent time together on dinners, tours, dinners and in class time. Many students enjoyed a trip to Santa Barbara. They had a great time shopping, eating, going to the movies and walking along the beach. To end their trip to Santa Barbara they performed their musical "Choose" to members at a near by church. The musical was a great success because the choir really showed their enthusiasm for their love for God.

The different choir groups were not only busy singing this year but they put a lot of effort into their different fund-raisers. They sold fruit cakes, Christmas trees, candy, baked goods and they even housed Japanese students for a week.

The WCHS musical department consisted of "Herald Chorale," Girls' Chorale" and "Freshmen Choir."

Practice Pays Off

Practice and a lot of hard work paid off for choir. Their performances not only shined, but they had a relaxing retreat. On February 21, 1985 choir had a friends and family performance. This was a time for everyone to get together and enjoy music. Excited people united for a fun-filled evening.

Earlier in the year, Santa Barbra was the place to have been. Walks along the beach, shopping, eating and the movies, were the activities choir enjoyed in sunny Santa Barbra. Everyone enjoyed the retreat and it brought the members closer as a whole.

Melanie Curtis reflects, "It was a lot of fun and I got to know more people." The retreat and family and friends performance, successfully gave many happy memories to choir members.

Eloquent Elocutionists

The WCHS Speech Team, better known throughout the years as the "talented tongues," found '84-'85 to be a year of success. Having qualified several members for state championships, the team felt that God truly blessed them in a great way. Their coach, Miss Diane Landfear, expressed her thankfulness for this, saying,

"I am grateful for the talented varsity speakers; I am thankful for the influx of new people; and finally, I am appreciative to God for the successes, friendships, and spontaneous times he has given the Speech Team."

During the course of the year, the team attended around fifteen tournaments. There the speakers competed in several events, with such topics as Mr. T, television ("Master or Servant?"), and oppression. Although WC was the only Christian school in its league, the competitors were able to more than hold their own against even the largest teams competing. Congratulations, Speech Team, on another outstanding year!

... Action

Putting together a production is hard work. The advisor, Mrs. Emma Rising, puts a lot of time and effort into each and every play.

First she must read and thoroughly go through a script and see that the material is right for actors and actresses. After reading the play she submitted it to the Administration who must approve all production scripts before they are cast.

The casting of a play took about four days to complete. There were approximately 60 students who auditioned for the plays. These auditions were held after school in the drama room. Usually Mrs. Rising casts the plays herself, but with the play "The Butler Did It," Robert Stir, the student director and President of the Drama Club, helped to cast this production.

The rehearsals were three to four days a week, and about three hours a day. The students use their own spare time for the play.

Finally the big night came. The actual performances were given three or four times. The cast and crew have waited a long time and worked so hard for these few performances. After it was all over and the six to eight weeks of auditions, rehearsals, and performances are gone, there's not a single actor who wouldn't do it all over again.

the students did not get a grade for all their efforts. They simply got a pat on the back and hearty congratulations.

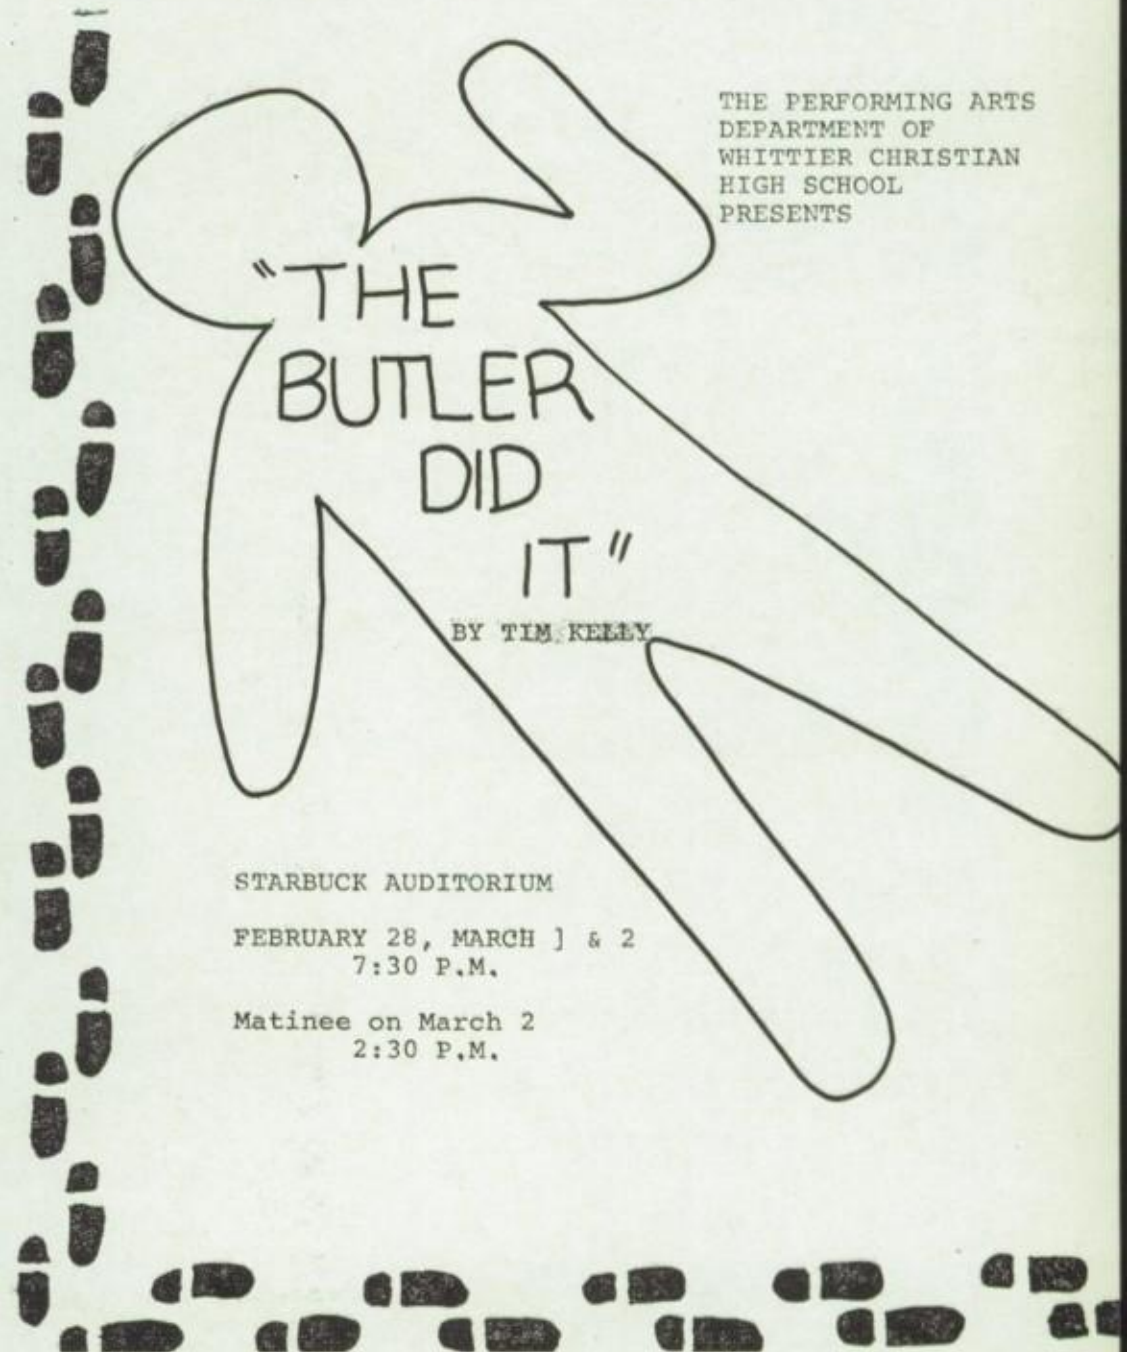

For the first time at our school we had a Thespian Society. It takes 100 hours of acting or producing to become a member of Troop 3728. The Thespian Society is nation wide. It allows actors and actresses to buy dramatic materials at a discounted price. Being a member allows the actor to attend drama festivals and gatherings. The Thespian Society and others who participated in the plays made the season one of the most successful ever.

Your all-consuming love envelopes us

Poet Laureate

Marguerite Martins has been writing poetry for the past four years. She started her freshmen year and has been writing ever since. When asked why she writes poetry she replied, "to express myself in a different way. It's a challenge — a real challenge."

Marguerite is interested in the theatre and drama. She has been in various productions at our school including Anastasia and The Buttlar Did It. In addition to drama Marguerite is involved in speech. She has been on the team for four years and has won trophies in such events as Dramatic Interpretation, Original Oratory, and Programed Reading.

Resident Artist

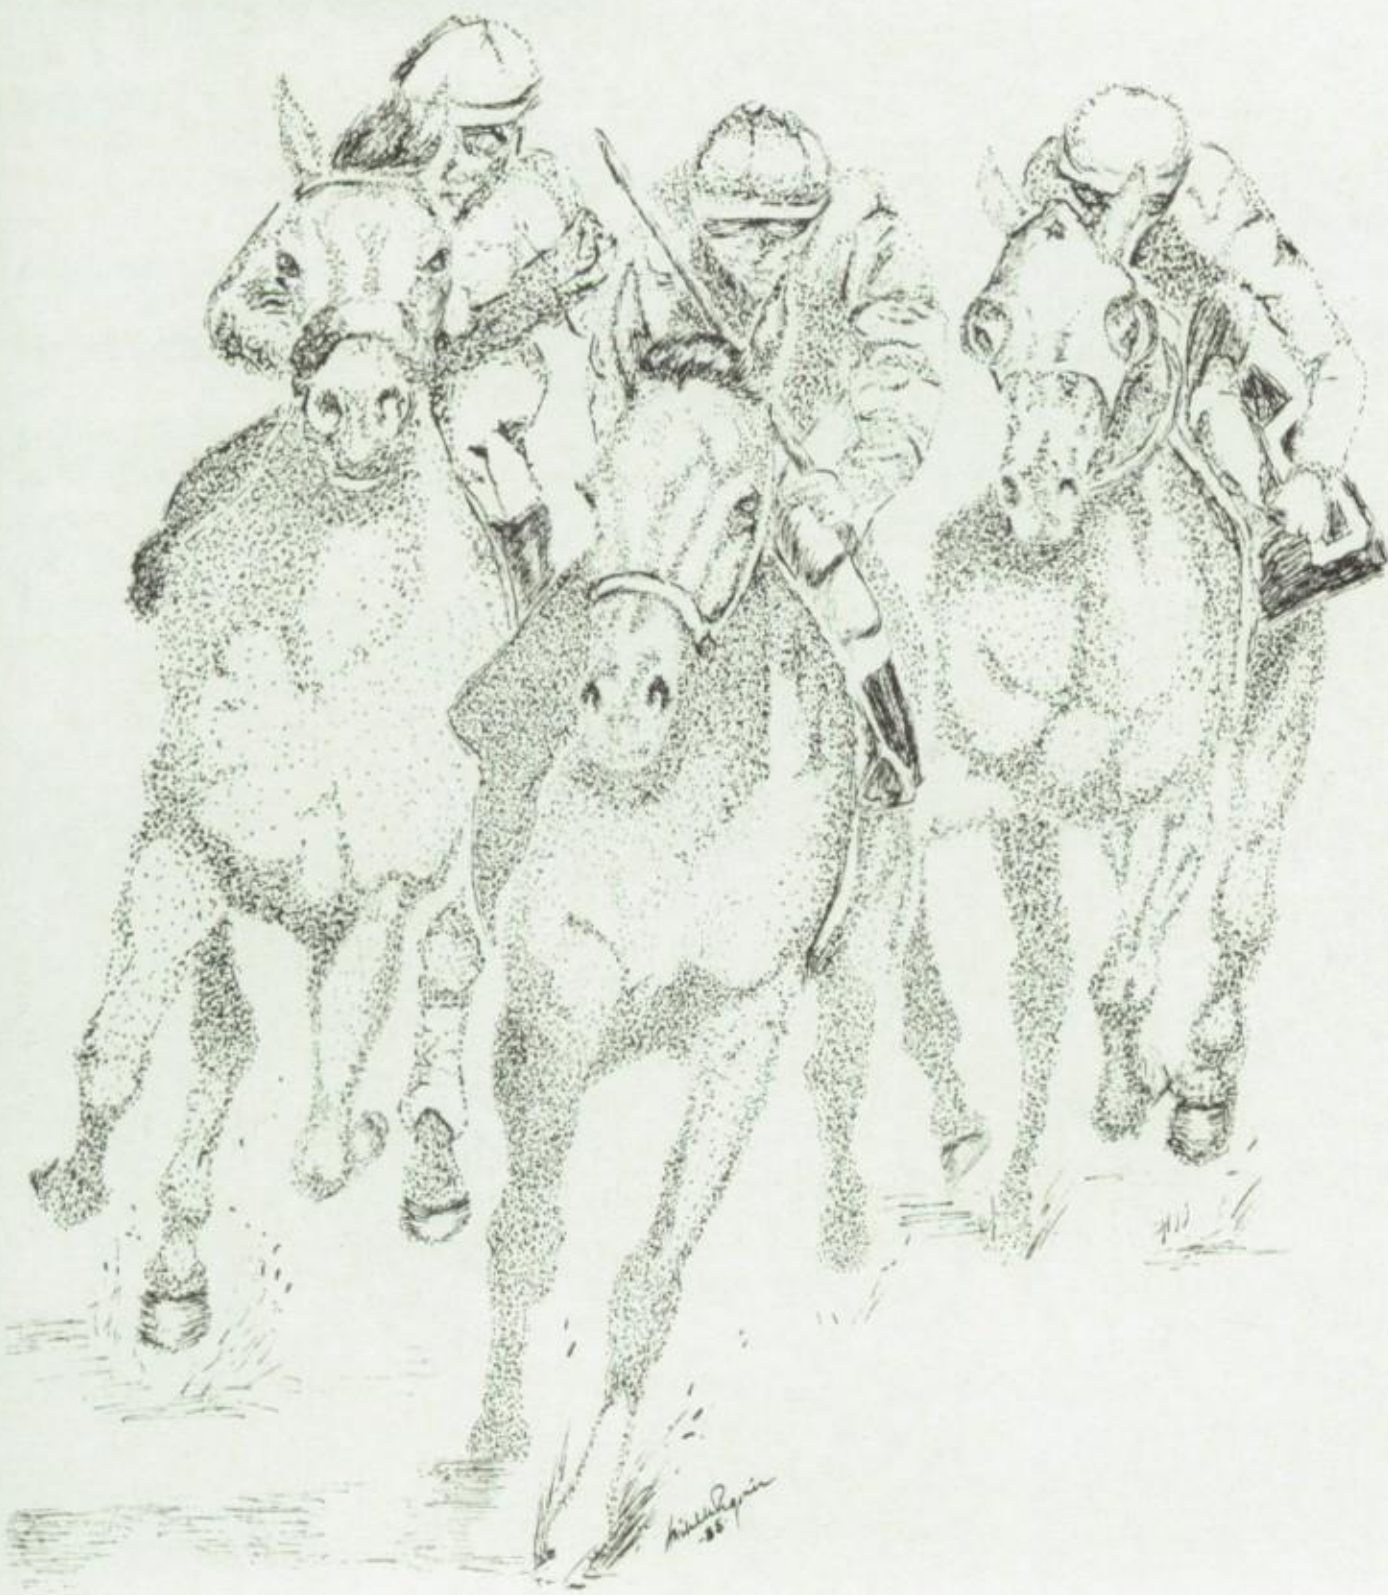

Off and Running

The 1984-85 Resident Artist was Michelle Regnier. Michelle has enjoyed art all her life and has taken art classes all four years of high school.

Mr. Jon Genberg, the WCHS art teacher, chooses the Resident Artist. The choice usually is someone he has worked closely with through the years. Michelle is responsible for doing artwork which is requested by various campus groups. Some of her work included the Homecoming reception announcement, College Night posters, and Speech Team posters.

When asked if her plans for the future included art she replied, "no, not really." Doing art is mainly a hobby for Michelle.

Scholarships for Scholars

The California Scholastic Federation is an honor earned by many Whittier Christian High School Students. To be eligible, the students must have taken at least four solids and they are required to have three A's and one B. CSF members are eligible after their semester grades come out. This gives the students two chances to receive the CSF honor.

Their advisor, Mrs. Vicki Rudisill, organized and planned CSF activities and field trips. Many students enjoyed their trips to Disneyland, Dinner Theatres, and to the Huntington Library. Their day at Huntington Library was a time for learning and fun. They took a tour through the Library, walked through the gardens, and looked at the fascinating art exhibits.

CSF is a well known honor and was regarded highly by colleges. Many students receive scholarships every year for being members of CSF. These CSF students continuously worked hard to excel in their school work, and their work payed off in their futures.

Fleeting Phases

Nineteen eighty-four . . . the year of Orwell's newspeak and Big Brother. Looking back, we could more accurately call it the year of Cyndi Lauper and the Cabbage Patch doll. But as we reflect on the foods, phases, faces and phrases of last year, many other pictures also come to mind:

In the world of television, viewers were greeted by a Bill Cosby series which made it to the top with old standbys: "Cheers", "A-Team", and "Hill Street Blues." Unending "bloopers" were also shown, exposing the stars in their most humbling moments. UHF t.v. allowed us to see the ultra-conservative Wally George as he attacked liberals on his weekly show, "Hot Seat."

A basically uneventful year in screen production, '84 did offer a few movies which made the hours waiting in theater lines worth it. "Ghostbusters" was at the top of the list in most people's minds, as well as "Footloose", "Purple Rain", "Splash", and "Gremlins." Additionally, anything starring Eddie Murphy could be assured to become a hit. Strangely, most movies seen by America weren't watched from uncomfortable seats and with popcorn and Jujubees in hand; VCR's made it possible to see every movie made from the privacy of one's own living room.

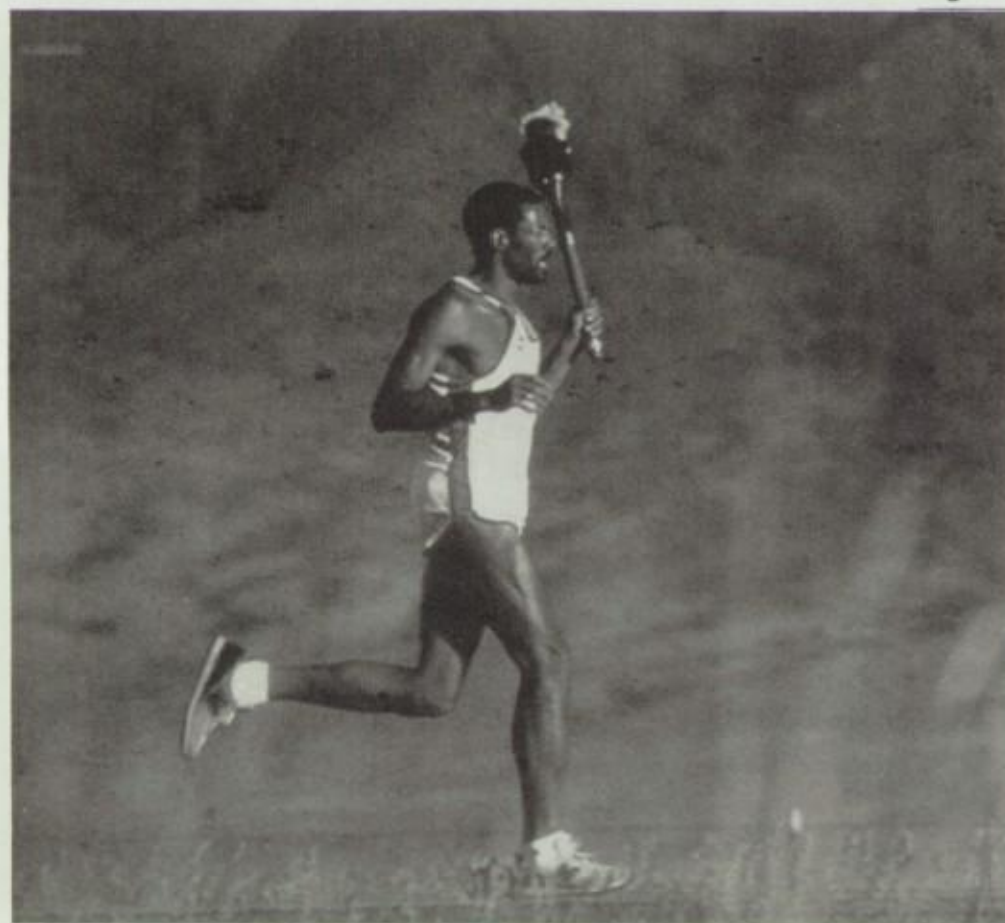

Most music lovers came to know Rick Dees as their best friend, keeping their radio dials glued to KIIS FM. Others didn't just listen, but instead went out to see the stars in person . . . the biggest concerts of the year were Bruce Springsteen's, U-2's and the Jacksons' — to name just a few. In December, Band-Aid (made up of the English rock community) brought Christmas spirit and help for starving Ethiopians with their song, "Do They Know it's Christmas" — a new twist for rock music.

Well, the image of 1984 is almost complete. But for a clearer picture, look at the typical American from last year . . . he can be seen "mousse"ing his hair in the latest fashion before rushing off to school. At lunch we can watch as he finishes off a caffeine-free cola. And lastly, inevitably, we hear him as he mutters that too-familiar phrase: "Where's the Beef?"

Nineteen eighty-four . . . if Big Brother were watching, what would he have thought?

A change in attitude was prevalent throughout the nation in 1984. Events that captivated the country's interest also signaled the reawakening of national pride and spirit. Speculation over whether or not this mood would last came too late; this new feeling made 1984 remarkable.

Early in the year, the huge task of refurbishing the 98-year old Statue of Liberty began. Construction was to be funded solely by private donations and was scheduled to be completed in 1986. Workers climbed the huge scaffolding to repair damages and clean the stains of exposure to the elements. The reconstruction of the Statue paralleled the change of the actual face of the nation. The U.S. was trying to repair its image from within and started the repairs on Manhattan Island.

In July, the Twenty-third Olympiad came to Los Angeles. Beginning with the carrying of the torch by individual runners across America, patriots lined the runners' pathways to cheer them on or merely watch with pride. At the games themselves, resounding cheers of "U-S-A" greeted all athletes. Although we were accused of extreme nationalism, the fervor was merited in the winning of 174 medals. Names in the headlines included Jeff Blatnich — wrestler, Mary Decker — runner, Jenna Johnson — swimmer, Carl Lewis — runner, Greg Louganis — diver, Edwin Moses — hurdler, and Mary Lou Retton — gymnast. National pride soared and sympathy for the Soviet-bloc nations who succumbed to Russian pressure to boycott reminded all of the 1980 Olympics. Romania took a stand for independence and had the support of the free world when they attended the games. Peter Ueberroth, Time's Man of the Year, deserved much of the credit for the smooth success of the games.

Success followed a failure for NASA's Space Shuttle missions. Two satellites went off course in February and the Shuttle Discovery was sent to the rescue. For the first time, man soared through space untethered and alone, and brought the two lost satellites back to the ship and safely home.

Finally, in November the nation elected Ronald Reagan to the White House for another four years by an overwhelming 49 state mandate. The campaigns brought up a number of new issues. The Democrat's Jesse Jackson was the first black to be seriously in the running for a major party's nomination. Also, for the first time in history, a woman, Geraldine Ferraro, received the Democrat's nomination as Vice-Presidential running mate for Walter Mondale. Issues such as the involvement of church with state and the morality of abortion were heatedly discussed and pondered. When Reagan won the approval of the usually Democratic young vote, researchers viewed the change as a sign that conservatism was on the rise and the positive national outlook that Reagan identified himself with received a strong vote of approval.

Throughout the year, the gradual change in attitude was encouraged by many diverse events. No matter how long the outlook survives, 1984 was marked by a feeling of positive patriotism.

1. Mary Lou Retton's perfect vault earns her a score of 10 and worldwide recognition for her gold medal. 2. Caught in the middle of campaigning, Ronald Reagan is a study of business and relaxation. 3. Repairing the face of the Lady and the image of the nation. 4. The Olympic torch travels across the country, lighting sparks of patriotism. 5. Inclement campaign weather could not dampen the effect of the Democratic ticket of Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro on the place of women in politics. 6. In awe, the world watches as man floats freely in the vast regions of space.

Other Headlines

The year of the Rat and the year of Big Brother were ominous signs for 1984. The world was beset by sorrows which have become all too familiar, commonplace, and ignored. But also, positive occurrences helped to alleviate the sting of the tragedies and restore optimism to many.

At the beginning of the year, AT&T's phone monopoly was disbanded and people in Hacienda Heights had their area code changed from 213 to 818. Although it was not a major change, many found it annoying to be confronted by an operator's voice telling them to dial again.

In July, one insane killer took the lives of 21 innocent victims and wounded 19 others in a mere ninety minutes. At a MacDonald's in SanYsidro, California, the murderer went on a shooting spree until police could stop him with a bullet. The families involved will continue to feel the pain and loss each time the carnage is mentioned.

The nation underwent a few revisions in the fall months. The U.S. received its first ranking Soviet visitor since Reagan had been in office, Andrei Gromyko. The Russians realized that President Reagan would probably occupy the office for another four years and therefore sent their foreign secretary calling. The U.S. also pulled the Marine troops out of Lebanon. The men had been placed there to keep the peace, but many terrorist attacks and a lack of progress prompted the public to ask for their removal. Finally, controversy surrounded the case of tiny Baby Fae when she received a simian heart to replace her damaged one. She survived longer than any other baboon heart transplant patient (39 days).

Toward the end of the year, the number of newsworthy events increased. England's Prime Minister, Margaret Thatcher, was victim of an Irish Republican Army terrorist attack when the hotel in which she was staying was bombed. While unhurt, the close call shook up the nation and proved that no country's leader was truly safe. In Mexico, gas containers exploded and the blast and raging fires killed more than 300 people. Generosity was rushed in, disproving the belief that the world was apathetic to all but its own citizens. In November, William Schroeder received an artificial, mechanical heart, the second human ever to undergo the transplant. The heart was more readily accepted than expected and Schroeder's first words following the operation were in the request of a beer, which illustrated his high spirits.

In December, a leak at the Union Carbide plant in Bhopal, India released poisonous gasses which killed or blinded and deformed thousands. The industrial accident brought safety into question and companies worldwide checked their own safety precautions in order to prevent another such catastrophe.

The varied events, both catastrophes and good news, helped to shape the year. Americans were mostly sheltered from the horrors of other nations, but sometimes the stories pulled us out of our apathy and into positive action.

1. Relief came flooding in from all over the world to help the starving millions, but the Marxist Ethiopian government was too busy celebrating its dictator's anniversary to help its own people. 2. William Schroeder and Baby Fae not only underwent delicate heart transplants, but captivated the heart of the nation and the interest of the science world. 3. After being the target of many terrorist attacks, the President removed the Marines from Lebanon, to the relief of their families and Congress. 4. The expressions of bewilderment of the faces of the bronzed vietnam veterans immortalize the real feelings of the vets who returned to the U.S. as disowned heroes. 5. Andrei Gromyko's visit received extensive press coverage and did much to improve the public's opinion of President Reagan as a peacemaker. 6. The assassination of the much-beloved Indira Ghandi started mass riots across India and proved to be a test through fire for her successor and son, Rajiv.

Helping Students Help Themselves

Few people knew about the Learning Center on campus and even fewer knew what it was all about. Since November of 1983, Mr. Bill Cuccia has been in charge of helping students with learning disabilities.

Students are recommended to the center by their teachers. Teachers have been informed to look for the signs of a learning disability. A person who has a disability has an "average or above average IQ, but has process problems," in the words of Mr. Cuccia. Process problems include a disruption in the receiving or the transmitting of information from the brain. Many people have the misinterpretation that a learning disability is a sign of low intelligence, and this stigma will often hinder students from seeking help. Consequently, many students will receive their first help in high school, going through their early years of school understanding what they are taught, but not being able to express it and not knowing how to change.

The center supplies the therapy to help the students discover how to develop these skills on their own and how to correct their process problems. After being recommended by a teacher, a student will take a strenuous 8-hour diagnostic test to discover their disability. Then Mr. Cuccia, Sherri Baumgardner, Carolyn Stewart, or Brenda Coleson, set up an individualized program to help the student. All through the preliminary work, the therapists communicated closely with the parents with explanations and definitions of their child's difficulties.

Then the students begin the hard work. Each student works with one of the therapists twice a week for 1½ hour sessions in their office. During the session, they are trained to increase their ability to do two things at once, such as writing while being orally drilled in academic subjects. The students are willing to work hard in the intense drilling, and because of their intelligence, usually show rapid progress. Diligently working at home and at school, some students raise their C or D grades in the first quarter to honor roll level during the second semester.

The Learning Center program was initiated by Mr. Art Cain at Whittier Christian Elementary School. He asked Mr. McKinley if he would be interested in continuing the program at the high school level. Mrs. Coleson and Mr. Cuccia then went to training courses to learn how to help because they felt this service was needed and rewarding. The Learning Center helped a total of 21 students on both campuses learn how to overcome their disability.

Chess Club

While most people were enjoying their lunches, members of the Chess Club were engaging in a battle of the minds. Under the guidance of Mr. Hilderbrand, the club met regularly for the relaxing games which eventually prepared them for the intense all school tournament in February and March. Participants included, Bryan Culp, Wade Hallisey, Dan Harpel, Ron Johnson, Daryl Lancaster, and Glenn Yeik. When the members found the time, they also competed with other schools in the area, such as La Serna and La Habra.

Math Club

Every sixth week, Math Club members met in Miss Turner's room to work on a set of math problems. The results of the testing were later tallied and compared with other schools throughout the state. In February, top members were chosen to take a ninety minute test which would offer some of them the opportunity to compete with the top one percent of math students in the state. Later in the year, a few members were also involved in a tutoring program with students in lower math levels.

Mission's Club

It has been an extremely successful year for Whittier Christian's first Mission's Club. Supervised by Mr. Dean, Mr. Hilderbrand, Mr. Westrup and Miss Wilson, students organized a toy drive for Children's Hospital of Orange County, sent hundreds of Bibles to Chile and other Latin American countries, and worked at an orphanage in Mexico during March. They also helped to enlighten the student body to the needs and goals of missions by hosting a "Mission's Night" for the entire school.

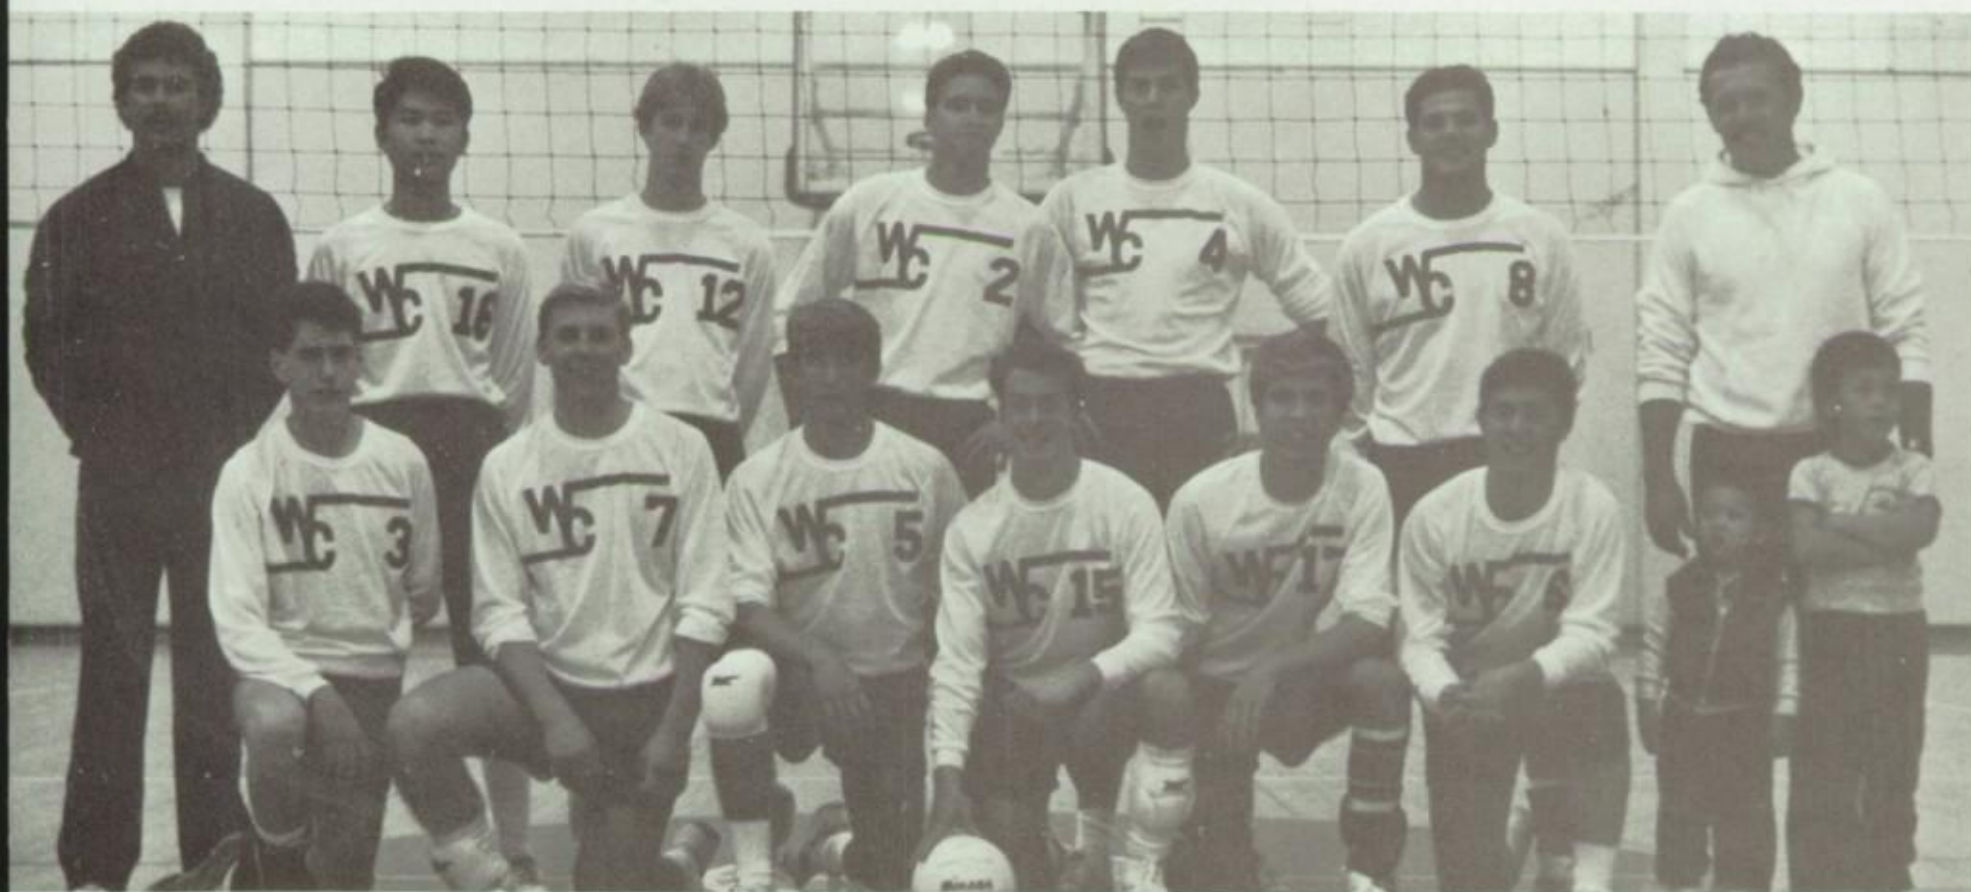

A New Addition

The newest sport to hit W.C.H.S. was Boys' Volleyball. Many boys showed their interest in belonging to this team. Coach Dave Herron organized and set up the schedules for the team members. The team competed with many near by secular schools. Coach Herron felt that his team could be a good witness to the public schools through a positive example of a Christian athlete. Coach Herron hoped that in the future the Heralds would be competing with other teams from the Olympic League.

Some key players were Eric Banas, Russ Shubin, Chris McCrary and Mike

Baugh. Boys' Volleyball will continue to grow strong through the next years. Many players will be returning which will help for another successful season.

WALLACE E. KANE

HARRIET M. KANE

To our Son Doug:

Seventeen years - how they have flown by so quickly, yet how full of rich experiences they have been for all of us. How very proud we are of you right now as you are graduating from high school, maturing into manhood, and entering a new exciting chapter of your life.

How can a parent ever measure the love they feel, or describe the joy they experience in watching their son develop. You've come far! The first days of school as a small child — the 12 fully-packed years of baseball and football, and the pride of having our son out there on the field demonstrating high levels of discipline — the many family vacations and heart-to-heart discussions drawing us even closer together — your childhood decision to accept Christ as Lord of your life, then your teenage testimony of baptism.

How we have enjoyed all this and being a part of your "fast-lane" life style! Your contagious love for life, your sensitivity to others, your determination to succeed, your affectionate, witty, spirited personality, has been enriching, amazing, and challenging! Even the sleepless nights of listening for your car to drive up the driveway at the prescribed time — now fade into insignificance. We've all survived!

With high school now behind you, and the door of opportunity open ahead, our greatest desire is for you to become a genuine man of God, to continue to grow closer to Him, and trust Him to direct your life. May the beautiful qualities you possess multiply and touch many others.

We're proud to be your Mom and Dad!
Thank you Lord, for giving us Doug!
Thank you Doug, for being you!

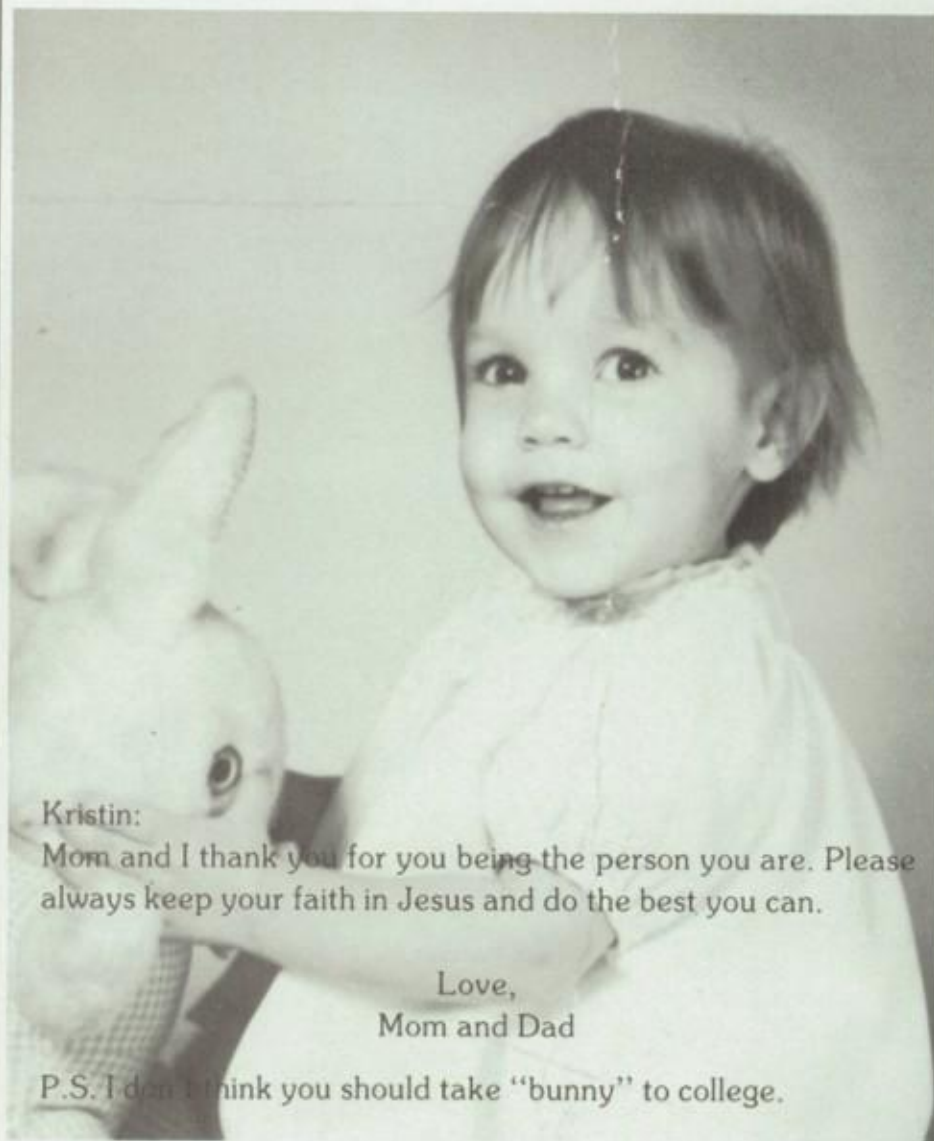

Love,

Ron,
It's hard to believe eighteen years have gone by since this picture was taken.

You can look forward to a life full of fine achievements and the best that life has to offer. You and God hold the key that opens the door to your innermost desires and aspirations.

All you have to do is to use that key. God is always present in you. He will guide you but you have to do the footwork.

Ron, you've grown up to be a very fine young man and I'm so very proud of you.

Never forget to be truthful and kind. Hold these virtues tightly. Write them deep within your heart. If you want favor with both God and man, and a reputation for good judgement and common sense, then trust the Lord completely; don't ever trust yourself. In everything you do, put God first, and he will direct you and crown your efforts with success.

CONGRATULATIONS POOH!

For all that you are and promise to be, we thank the Lord!

CONGRATULATIONS CLASS OF '85!

Dear Tabie,

Many sisters are alike and share the same interests. But for 18 years, you and I have been completely opposite. I know the Lord is teaching me patience through you. You cutting my favorite shirt for your work-out shirt is just one of the few examples. You're my little sister and I'll always be here for you the way you've been here for me this past year. No one can take your place, I LOVE YOU and from the bottom of my heart I wish you all the best.

With all my love,
your sister,
Annabelle

Dear Matthew,

From your earliest years, we realized you were a special child chosen by God. Your anxiousness to please, sensitive attitudes and tender spirit are distinctive traits.

Our most earnest desire for you is that you become a mature man of God. We see this goal already begun. Our prayer is that you will always keep Jesus in control of your life.

We're proud of you and love you,
Mom and Dad

Jacqueline (Jitterbug)

In 1966 the Lord brought us the joy of our life — a 6 lb, 8 oz, 21½ inch baby girl. From the day we first met you, we noted a joyous sparkle in your powder-blue eyes. That sparkle has been pervasive in your personality and has seen us through eighteen exciting and cherished years. Before you hit your second anniversary, you had pulled down and decapitated our Christmas tree, investigated every square inch of the kitchen cupboards, and conquered our roof and fences. Docile, lady-like years followed — knocking over girls in soccer, competing with boys in baseball, flipping in gymnastics, and tackling teammates in basketball. The discovery of boys brought modeling along with Jacque's harem and endless hours of monopolizing AT&T. Through thick and thin, through the red rose of Tivoli, Jacque, your insatiable appetite for life and to be involved has continued to flourish. We are sure that, with the Lord, you will continue to sparkle and continue to be that very, very special person we have always seen in you. Jacque, in going out into the world, we want to give you one last point of advice — stay the way you are and happiness will be yours.

We love you always,

You are a joy and blessing to us. You are sincere, honest, dependable, resourceful, stubborn, kind, trustworthy, persistent, independent, loving, giving and dedicated. We praise God for you and all young people, for you are the strength of America.

Continue to reach out through the negative and take hold of the positive each day. Seek opportunities and challenges, and continue to grow in wisdom and strength. Find humor in frustrations, a good sense of humor will carry you through emotional hurt and physical pain.

Dearest Kevin,
Your life is just beginning. In everything you pursue, keep the Lord in your heart and you'll be blessed. Thank you for giving us remembered joys which will be with us forever.

We are very proud of you and we love you very much.

Dad, Mom, Shawn and Jennifer

Dear Melanie,

We just wanted to let you know what a blessing you have been in our lives since the day you were born. When the doctor told us we had a girl, we could hardly believe it. Ever since that day, you have never ceased to amaze us with your witness, enthusiasm, and zest for life.

You have been the kind of daughter we had dreamed about even before you were born. You continually bring happiness and laughter in our lives — especially at those times when you lose your temper. Those times seem to be the funniest.

You are a special and beautiful treasure from God that we love more than words can say. No words can describe the warm memories, the pride, and the gratitude that comes with having a daughter like you.

The one thing that pleases us the most, and the thing we are most thankful for is that you are truly a child of God. Jesus is number one in your life and you always have depended on Him. We praise God daily for this.

Since you mean so much to us, we couldn't miss this opportunity to tell you and God Bless you always!"

P.S. Taz, thanks for being my best friend and a great sister. Congratulations.

Dear Colleen:

Your mother and I agree . . . it just doesn't seem possible!

Here you are all grown up as a young lady, ready to launch out into life before we can bring ourselves to believe it's really happening. Seems like only last week you first stepped onto the high school campus. The song from Fiddler on the Roof is so true:

"Sunrise, sunset . . . sunrise, sunset, Swiftly fly the years."

But whether we are ready or not, sweetheart, the time has arrived and you are soon to graduate. How proud we are of you! We affirm your ideals, we applaud your achievements, we admire your leadership. It gives us great pleasure to reflect on your school years and to realize what a delightful period of time they have been. And haven't they been fun? You will have to agree, few people could have packed more into those years than you have, and we wouldn't have had it any other way.

You have what it takes to succeed in life, Cols. Knowing this, we have confidence in you. You know yourself quite well. Thankfully, you do not struggle with low self esteem . . . but neither do you have an overly inflated ego. That healthy balance between security and humility will enable you to handle whatever peer pressure you may encounter. You also have a happy disposition, which will get you through the tough times ahead. Whatever you do, don't lose that clever sense of humor! This gloomy world needs all the laughter you can give it. You care about people and you demonstrate your love to them, which means your list of friends will always be long.

We are especially pleased to observe that your relationship with Christ is genuine. You feel deeply about His word, His work, and His will, Good for you! We are so glad that you have resisted the temptation to "mouth" a lot of empty religious jargon. You have, instead, cultivated an authentic walk with the Saviour. Press on. Never stop. Don't even slow down.

May your future be marked by these four objectives:

- *An untiring pursuit of excellence
- *An unswerving commitment to integrity
- *An enduring enjoyment of life
- *An enriching walk with the Lord our God

If it is, our investment in you over these years will repay us with the finest dividend parents can expect from a daughter: our little girl will have become a woman of God.

With all our love,
Mom and Dad

Dear Bee:

Well, here you are at that point in your life, which not so very long ago, seemed so many years away!

We are blessed to have you as an important part of our family; you've always brought us much joy and happiness. It's been rewarding to watch you grow and develop into such a neat person.

We've had many happy days together, and one of my happiest was the day when you were in the first grade and I came to pick you up from school. You were so bubbly as you got into the car and said, "Guess what I did at school today, Mom." Then you added, "I stayed in at recess to do it." After I guessed some things I thought a first grade boy might do, you said, very excitedly, "I asked Jesus into my heart!" I cherish the memory of that afternoon.

Now, as you face a new (and probably scarier) part of your life, I want you to know that I will continue to support you with my love and prayers. Always stand strong for what is right, even if you must stand alone (it won't always be easy), and remember that you and God are the majority in every situation.

Good luck and God bless you — I will be forever grateful that God has allowed me the precious privilege of being your Mother and friend.

I love you,
Mom

To Scamp:

It seems like just yesterday that the doctor stated with joy that my waiting was over —
He said, "It's a boy!"

Do you remember each night,
when regular as a clock,
you'd look up and say,
"I want Honey to rock"?

So we would sit in the rocker and rock you to sleep and sing about animals, like tigers and sheep.

And during the years,
(about 17 or so),
it's been neat to stand by and watch as you grow.

But the one thing, I think that sets you apart is the fact that the Saviour lives in your heart.

And, now as you start on a new journey in life remember that it will not be without strife.

But, never forget — through the good times and bad — that I'll always be proud that I am your Dad!

Love,
Dad

Cindi Scaffide—

How happy we are to see that you're a Senior and are all grown up. The years have really gone by fast.

We remember when—you first started school and you made your first friend that lives up the street. You brought her home and said "Mom, this is my new friend." Now you have so many nice friends from Whittier Christian.

We remember when—you were swimming on the Brea Thunderbirds swim team. You had practice 5 days a week after school. You won the silver and bronze medal at the Long Beach Arena. How proud we were of you and you were only 8 years old.

We remember when—you started playing softball at the age of 9. You loved it so much you continued to play until you were too old. Now you are playing for Whittier Christian. How happy we were to watch you play first base and pitcher. You really had fun doing that, and you still do. Remember the no-hitter you pitched against Yucaipa when you were 13 years old?

You have really had some fun growing up and now as you go off to college we pray that you will continue to enjoy life and seek God's Will. God has a plan for you and He will care for you. He has been so good to us and we're thankful for all He has done.

Remember Matthew 6:33 — Seek first His kingdom and His righteousness and all these things shall be added to you. Putting God first is very important and we pray you will continue to do that.

Cindi you have a special gift for listening to others and caring for them and sharing their problems.

Thank you Cindi, for all the joy, laughter and happiness you have given us. May God continue to bless you in all you do.

*We Love you very much,
Mom and Dad*

To Marnie — our first baby, a special package a blessing from God. Your enthusiastic, creative, bubbling personality is such an encouragement to others.

Just as your personality is so pleasing to those who know you, our greatest desire is that your whole life be pleasing to God. The only this can be done is to trust and obey (Prov. 3:15) Remember the meaning of your last name is "servant". Serve Him with gladness.

We sure do love you

Tammy,

What can I write to express how we feel?
Dad say's, "Write a poem", like it's no big deal.
But how can we say just how proud we are?
Rob says show her by buying her a car!
She's still our baby all cuddly and sweet,
But oh our baby has grown over 5 feet!
She's a baby no more, but a beautiful young girl,
And soon she'll fall in love and go off in a whirl.
And we'll lose her to a nice young man,
Daddy says this is more than he can stand!
But now she's at a point in her life,
Which has been happy and full and sometimes given to strife.
Now your graduating and to college you'll go,
Why do these babies have to go and grow?
From the time you were our tiny little baby,
Until today when you are a precious young lady.
God has directed your life and shown you the way,
He's always been there, you just had to pray.
We gave you to Him when you were a baby,
Now Lord here she is, this is your young lady.
We've loved her and nourished her in your own ways,
As she steps out into this world where it's easy to stray,
We ask you to keep her in your loving care,
Because there's none other like her, she's so very rare.
She's loving and helpful, tender and kind,
And you've seemed to bless her with a strong mind.
Use her for your glory, show her the way,
We love her so much, guide her in every way.

Love and Kisses,
Dad and Mom

I'm proud to be your brother! Hope you left me some good

Congratulations Dear Laura:

We are proud of you at this time in your life. More than pride in your graduation there is joy and warmth to the memories of your childhood. While many memories are yours alone, in our heart, you share many with your sister Ruth; during your grade school days in Brownies, and Girl Scouts, your Jr.High days at original Starbuck, your participation in different sports together. It makes us very happy how you encourage each other on your own different ways.

Now as we watch two beautiful young ladies step out to meet life's challenges, we know God will walk with you. Never forget the source of your gifts and blessing, that you may pass these on to other. Always remember to put God first in everything you do; He will crown your efforts.

Dear Brena:

Eighteen years ago, in the Philippines, you were born into our little family. I took only a few days to recognize that charming quality that has marked your life — a quiet, unassuming, cooperative spirit. Our lives have been challenged and convicted as we have seen your desire for total obedience, not only to us and your teachers, but especially to the Lord. In your gentle way, you decided to submit your time, talents, and energies to every opportunity which came along. Acting and singing parts, cheerleading, parties for your friends, drill team, school leadership, summer missions — you have selflessly participated in all these, and more. This driving ambition to be involved in all that is good, Brena, gives us nothing but joy and peace as we anticipate your future and the ventures that you will feelled to pursue. Your sensitivity to God's Holy Spirit in your heart will, as in the past, continue to make you teachable, usable, and able to bring only glory to our Saviour.

We love you very much,

I'm glad you made it through Whittier Christian. There were times when I had my doubts. Just kidding. I am so proud of you. You have grown so much in only 17 years. It's really hard to turn you loose, but I know this must happen for you to continue to grow into who you will be as an adult.

When you sat on my lap many years ago, I never thought you would be as beautiful as you are — both inside and out. I thank your mother for what she did for you when I was not around. I hope you will always remember your roots — those who helped you get here.

Well, the party itself is over. The 1984-85 school year has passed and everyone made it through. Although it was hectic and the problems that faced us at times seemed to overwhelm each person, leafing through this book reminds all of the good memories that each person accumulated during the year. It has been our privilege, pleasure and challenge as a staff to help recreate the year in the 1985 Trumpet. Faced with this immense task, we knew that without the Lord's assistance, our job could have proven to be too large for us to handle. We realized that if we tried to give God the glory for our publication, He would supply the patience, perseverance, and ability to make our deadlines, keep our sanity, and produce the best quality yearbook we could.

We also had help from others on campus. Non-staff members who made significant contributions included Brian Perry for his candid shots from the Freshman campus, the third period Photo class for their gifts of candid shots, Mr. Jon Genberg for filling in as photographer when needed and for bearing with the mess we left in his room after particularly busy worknights, Dorian Taylor for his professional portraits and always friendly advice, Candace Johnson for doing a great job in taking over as our Taylor

Editor's Note

Publishing representative, and Mr. Dave Daly for his encouragement, new ideas, corrections and comic relief with Gumby and the ET Calculator. Excessive thanks and recollection of memories can become dull and redundant, so at the closing of this book, I wish all a continued celebration during the years to come and a feeling of satisfaction at the end of this school year.

Alex, I have really enjoyed these last few months in Bible. Having you in Bible made notetaking slightly bearable, just slightly! I hope I have some classes with you next year. Have a restful summer away from School. Yeah! Phil Andrews

Alex,

Just think only one more year to go. I really enjoyed having you in my English class.

your friend
Kaiten

P.S. Have a great summer

Alex P. Kalugin,
It has been great having you as a friend for these last couple of years. Next year, is it! The last, final, spectacular year! Well, make it the best!

Your friend,

Ralph Ferguson
(Senior Smoke)

Alex,
It's been fun in History and Costler's class. I'm glad we got to be better friends this year. Thanks for having me one seriously and remember the next game is Sept. 4. Call me up and we'll do something. (714) 992-4815 maybe this time we can go to Hollywood or Beverly Hills. I like that amplex picture on the front, I don't believe she drew that. Anyway, I'll see you soon. Have a fun summer at home. Peter watch out for half-eaten pizzas!

Alex, English has been pretty fun this year huh!
I'm glad we could have
it and P.E. Together this year and hopefully we'll have a couple of classes together next year as seniors. Well,
see ya then! Adios!
